Triangle Conduit and Cable Co. to locate new plant in Sikeston

Will employ 100 to 120

Triangle Conduit and Cable Co. will open a manufacturing plant next spring in the building formerly occupied by Anchor Toy Corp., 1620 E. Malone Ave.

The announcement was made today at a special City Council meeting in which the council took the first step toward issuing $2 million in industrial and general obligation bonds to finance acquisition of the building and the land.

The manufacturing plant will employ 100 to 120 people when it is in full operation by July. Mayor Frank Ferrell estimated another 100 jobs would be generated for truck drivers needed to haul the manfuactured products.

The Sikeston plant will specialize in wire drawing, stranding, plastic coating and assembly.

Triangle Conduit and Cable Co. is a wholly owned subsidiary of Triangle Industries, Inc. of Holmdel, N.J. The parent company also owns The Plastic Wire and Cable Corp., Rowe International, Inc., and Triangle Pipe and Tube Co., Inc.

Triangle Industries grossed $225 million in 1973 and employed 3,800 people in eight manufacturing locations in the United States and 25 distributor and administrative offices in the United States, Europe and the Far East.

The firm is primarily concerned with the manufacture of electrical wire, cable and steel conduit, copper pipe and fittings and plactic pipe, along with a full line of vending machines, phonographs and coin and dollar bill changers.

Fortune Magazine last year ranked the firm as the 528th largest company in the United States.

Jim Beaird, president of Sikeston Industrial Development Corporation, called Triangle Industries "people of stature and quality in industry" and said the company would have a significant impact on the city.

"They'll be good for us and I see no reason why we won't be good for them," he said.

Plans call for the city to authorize the sale of bonds to pay for the building and the land. The bonds will be repaid from the lease.

Sikeston will not have to put up any funds, although the city's name will be on the bonds. If the company should default, the city would get the building and the fixtures.

Voters will be asked to approve the bonds in a special election probably sometime early in December. To be issued are no more than $750,000 in general obligation bonds and the remainder in industrial revenue bonds.

The plan must be submitted to the state Department of Commerce and Development before an election can be called.

Rod Hitt, vice president of the conduit and cable company told the council that pay scales would run from $2.25 to $4.25 per hour, with 40 per cent of the employes to be female and a payroll that will top $750,000 annually.

The plant will be in full operation by July but will begin operating at a lower capacity in the spring, Hitt said.

When in full operation, the plant will run continuously because the wire extruder cannot be shut down.

The plant will use 20 million pounds of copper, shipped in annually by 2,000 rail cars from the company's rolling mill in New Jersey. The company will also use four to five million pounds of plastic.

The plant will ship out 30 to 35 million pounds of finished product in 8,500 truck loads.

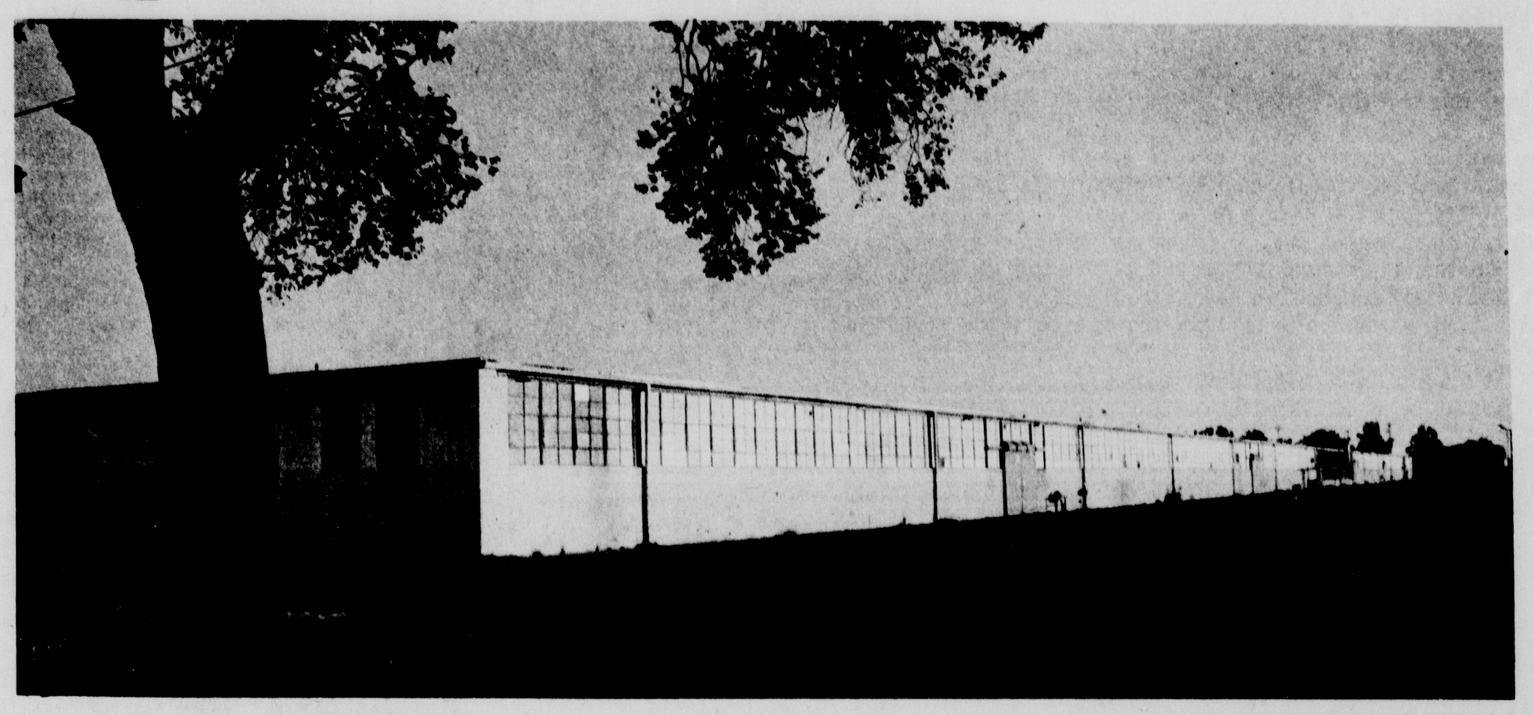

Major users of triangle products are Skil Tool Corp., Sears and Roebuck, Electrolux and Premier Vacuum Cleaner companies.

The finished products will be distributed from Sikeston to a 14-state area.

Bill Wellborn, executive director of the Chamber of Commerce, said the company picked Sikeston because of its central location and because the Anchor Toy building was available for immediate occupancy.

Phil Sarantos, vice president of Triangle Industries, said his firm has been impressed with the people and the civic spirit in Sikeston.

The company will use $250,000 worth of utilities annually.

Lewis, LaRue trial set for Dec. 10

BLOOMFIELD — Trial has been set for Dec. 10 in Stoddard County Circuit Court for Melvin Leon Lewis of Sikeston and David LaRue of Gray Ridge, who are charged with three counts of first-degree murder in connection with the death by fire of three Lewis children on Aug. 1, 1973 near Essex.

Circuit Clerk Charles Corbin said today that court officials and law enforcement officers have been instructed by Judge Flake McHaney not to release any additional information regarding the Lewis-LaRue case.

The two men are charged with setting fire to the Lewises' rural home.

Malone & Hyde gets bomb call

A bomb threat was telephoned to employes of Malone & Hyde, Inc., 1500 W. Malone Ave., at 7:55 p.m. Wednesday, police said today.

The unidentified male caller said a bomb would explode at 10 p.m. in the computer room.

Police checked the building and found no bomb.

Employes told police the threat may be related to an upcoming union vote by truckers employed by the firm.

Stereo items stolen here

Eddie Mills, 800 Ruth St., told police Wednesday that someone had taken $1,320 worth of stereo equipment from his home.

Taken were a record player valued at $99, an amplifier worth $559, a reel-to-reel tape player worth $266, an eight track tape player worth $159, tapes worth $59 and two speakers worth $178.

The theft apparently occurred during the day while Mills and his wife were gone.

The Knights of Columbus Hall, 829 Tanner St., was burglarized sometime Tuesday or Wednesday, according to police.

Taken were $3 in change and a case of beer. The burglars apparently entered the building by breaking out a south window.

Extradition ruling may come Friday

JACKSON, Miss. — Gov. Bill Waller says he hopes to decide by Friday whether to extradite Dr. Norman A. Garrison of Corinth to Kennett, Mo. to face a Missouri murder charge.

Waller will make his decision on information received during a seven-hour hearing Oct. 10 conducted by an aide, attorney Jimmy Williams, behind closed doors.

Garrison, 32, is charged with the beating and shooting death of his former wife, Mrs. Lee Ann Garrison, whose body was found in a bedroom of her Kennett, Mo., home on Sept. 8.

Dunklin County officials said they had a Garrison fingerprint in blood found near the scene, but Garrison's defense attorney, John B. Farese, Sr. of Ashland, said he submitted testimony that Garrison was not in Missouri Sept. 8.

Williams said when the governor's decision is reached, it will be announced "as a matter of courtesy" first to the defense attorneys and to the Mississippi Attorney General's office, where Ed Snider, who conducted the case for Missouri, will then notify Dunklin County authorities.

Williams has submitted a report of the proceedings to the governor and has included his recommendations.

Williams' recommendation will be known only to the governor, unless the governor decides to make it public, based on his decision.

Williams, who closed the hearing to the press to guard against any premature disclosure of evidence in the event the case should go to trial, said only of the hearing that "both sides presented good cases." He did not elaborate.

"The point in question" at the hearing, Williams explained, "was extremely narrow," and would be a factual determination of whether the accused was in Missouri when the crime was committed.

If the governor decides to extradite Dr. Garrison, a rendition warrant would be issued by his office and the doctor would be subsequently arrested and returned to Missouri. However, Garrison's attorneys have said that in that event, they would file a writ of habeas corpus in the courts in Mississippi to contest the governor's ruling.

If the governor decides against extradition, there is no other recourse for Missouri authorities in their attempt to return the doctor here to stand trial on the murder charge, however, the state of Missouri could wait until a later date and request again for extradition. In Missouri, there is no statute of limitations on first degree murder charges.

The Garrisons were married in 1963 while attending the University of Mississippi. After he finished medical school he became a partner in a Kennett hospital established by her grandfather. He returned to his native Corinth after they were divorced in June.

Sikes supplements report

JEFFERSON CITY, Mo. (AP) — State consumer affairs director Alfred Sikes said today he has submitted a supplementary report to Gov. Christopher S. Bond on his recommendations for modification of the state's 8 per cent usury law.

He said the new report outlines the other alternatives considered to his final proposal for taking the lid off regulation of interest rates on home loans, corporate loans and commercial loans over $5,000 and raising the ceiling to 10 per cent on other loans.

A plan to place a 10 per cent ceiling on all loans except corporate loans was rejected, he said, because it could eventually place the state in the same situation concerning home loans it now finds itself should interest rates continue to rise.

A floating ceiling based on either the federal discount rate or the prime interest rate was also rejected because the public does not fully understand either of the rates and such a floating ceiling could cause confusion.

Burlison predicts passage of health insurance bill

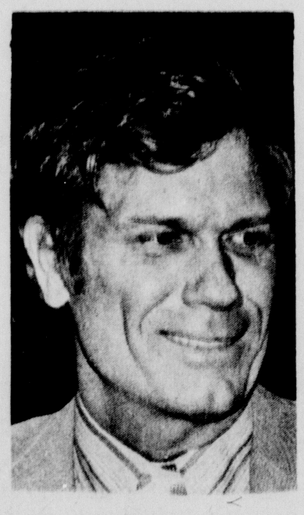

Discussing what he termed "America's Health Care Crisis," U. S. Rep. Bill D. Burlison said, "Today, Americans spend three times more in a year for health care than they did just a decade ago - $441 versus $145 per capita."

The Cape Girardeau Democrat spoke today at Ramada Inn at a special health care seminar for employers sponsored by Delmo Family Services, Inc. To combat such a spiral, a national health insurance law is inevitable, he said.

The Congressman briefly summarized the major provisions of the most significant health reform bills receiving Congressional scrutiny. The most comprehensive measure, the Corman-Griffiths bill offers virtual "cradle-to-grave" health benefits financed through increased payroll taxes and general U. S. tax revenues and administered through the social security system.

The Republican administration has offered a more limited program that would be voluntary in nature and handled through the private insurance companies. Sen. Edward Kennedy of Massachusetts and Rep. Wilbur Mills of Arkansas have offered a compromise bill that would include some of the Administration provisions with respect to deductibles and co-insurance.

Burlison said legislation will probably not be finally enacted in the present Congress but is likely next year.

OIL PRICE: MOMENT OF TRUTH

Secretary of State Kissinger did not overstate the case when he warned the oil producing states at the U.N. that the world must have relief from the high price of their oil.

Day by day it becomes more obvious that high energy costs are an uncontrollable element in any program to stop inflation. The effects of the sharp rise in the price of petroleum in the past year are now beginning to ripple out into all apsects of the U. S. economy which are dependent on petroleum products. And economists throw up their hands in despair as evidence mounts that the Western economic system simply cannot stand a continuance of these oil price levels and the general inflation resulting from them.

The recent meeting of the Organization of Petroleum Exporting Countries (OPEC) in Vienna did nothing to relieve the situation. Not only was the posted price of Arab oil not reduced, but the "buy back" price has been raised. This is the price at which the oil companies "buy back" from the Arab governments the oil production which the governments themselves now own (60% in the case of Saudi Arabia, but soon to reach 100%). Customarily, the price has been somewhat less than the posted price. The two-tier oil system is thus about to be wiped out, resulting in a further overall oil price rise.

Saudi Arabia's Sheikh Yamani candidly concedes that he expects a "major world recession" due in part to expensive oil. He talks as though his government would like to lower the price but can do nothing because other OPEC nations will not agree.

This situation is intolerable. Have consumer nations no choice except to do nothing while economic disaster overtakes them as a result of the stranglehold which the oil cartel now exerts on the world? Are there no forms of effective retaliation open to us to force an oil price reduction if common sense does not prevail?

There are rumors of counterpressures about to be brought. We hope they are true and that Kissinger's remarks were not mere words. If there ever was a vital national interest at stake, it is now. The well- being of the American and other peoples is directly involved. We do not presume to tell our government how to act, but we do say that act it must.

THE PRESIDENT LACKED HIS APLOMB

President Gerald Ford was not the suave gentleman last week at his press conference that he had been previously. There was a lack of something in his demeanor.

He had to admit to his questioning newsmen that repercussion over his pardon of Mr. Nixon had been greater than he had anticipated. Yet, in spite of it all, he denied that ther was any deal between him and Mr. Nixon.

We have no knowledge of any agreement between the two men, but it does seem a mite strange that Gerald Ford as Vice- President ran all over the United States proclaiming that Mr. Nixon was innocent of any wrongdoing. Then the first thing we knew, he was on the critical side of Mr. Nixon. Then came the pardon.

The United States and the world may never know all of the facts and the true facts about Richard Nixon's latest experiences in the White House. His experiences of years ago are history. All of us remember his attacks on a fine woman, Helen Gahagan Douglas. He damaged her character, but he did that for others, so she was no exception.

We sometimes wonder just what Mr. Nixon's thoughts are as he walks along the beach near his San Clemente home. If he has turned on his radio or his television he has not had any joyous news about himself in recent weeks. That may hold true for many weeks to come.

President Ford got himself into the mess he is in now. He has done it on two measures, one Mr. Nixon's pardon and the other amnesty for the boys up in Canada. Neither helped his cause as President. We have not changed our mind in the least. At one time we thought Mr. Ford such a clean- cut, honest individual that he was a natural- born leader. All of that has disappeared.

President Ford will be watched by the newsmen in Washington. He will be "collared" whenever he makes a misstep. And we believe that is all for the good. If men in high places have to be watched, then they have to be watched.

STATE SALARIES SOAR IN REORGANIZATION

The reorganization of Missouri government this year has resulted in unexpected large salary increases for many middle- and upper- level state officials, according to a report issued yesterday by the staff of the House Appripriations Committee.

A partial survey of the payroll of Gov. Christopher S. Bond's administration noted that at least 70 persons in such jobs had received pay hikes of 10 per cent or more, the report said.

Some of them, the report continued, are earnin 40 or 50 per cent more than they did before the reorganization plan went into effect July 1.

In making the hefty raises, the committee staff said, the executive branch may have violated the intent of the general assembly when it forumulated the state's general operating budget for 1974-75.

Although the budget legislation allows agency directors to determine their employees' salaries, the report contended, the amount of money allocated to each did not allow for more than a 5 or 6 per cent pay hike for any one worker.

State Rep. James (Jay) Russell (D-St. Louis County), committee chairman, said he believed the report showed that the Bond administration had taken advantage of reorganization changes to create special pay boosts for political reasons.

"This is patronage, which they (Bond and his staff) said they wouldn't practice," Russell said. "The lower- level people, the clerks, the secretaries, got the 5 per cent increases and no more. But look at all those upper- level employees."

Bond administration officials quickly labeled the report inaccurate, incomplete and politically motivated.

Robert James, director of the state office of administration, called the survey "a purely political document" riddled with factual errors and inconsistencies.

He said the report cities increases in pay for certain officials without noting that their jobs had changed.

When the Bond administration's budget request was submitted to the general assembly last year, James said, Russell and other House and Senate leaders were advised that some administrative officials would be receiving salary increases of more than 5 per cent.

He said it was obvious to everyone involved that the reorganization plan — which involved a wholesale reshuffling of almost every function of state government — would mean many changes in job classifications of employees. With the changes, he said, might come salary adjustments.

Some of those receiving extra raises, he said, were some of those who earn more than 5 or 6 per cent more money this year had been promoted to new jobs with additional duties.

Others, he said, are receiving sizable increases because their pay had been raised to compare more favorably with salaries received by persons in similar positions in the business world.

And yet others, he said, had realized large pay increases because their departments' salary scales traditionally had been lower than those of other state agencies.

For example, he said officials of the state agriculture department traditionally had been lower than those of other state agencies.

For example, he said, officials of the state agriculture department traditionally had received "ridiculously low wages" compared to persons with similar responsibilities in other departments.

That is why, he said, the directors of the eight divisions in the department are receiving pay hikes of 29 to 50 per cent.

James said the administration is not overspending its personnel budget. He said it has every right to decide how it wants to use the money that has been allocated for the purpose.

He said Russell's contention that few employees in lower-paying positions had received the special raises linked to reorganization was "utterly false."

"I could go through the files and cite any number of file clerks and secretaries whose salaries also were increased in that way," James said.

However, he admitted that proportionally fewer employees in low- level positions had received the high raises than those in higher - placed jobs.

Besides the steep pay hikes in the agriculture department, the report noted salary increases in excess of 20 per cent for certain officials of the department of natural resources, the office of administration and the department of consumer affairs, regulation and licensing.

Most persons in middle-management capacities in state agencies now earn at least $15,000 a year, the report indicates.

The salaries of the directors of all but one state department are set by statute at $30,000 a year.

Russell said the report was drawn up mainly "to show what went wrong" as a result of the Senate's refusal to go along with his plan for a line-item budget.

For many years the legislature has covered salaries by assigning a sum under the heading "personnel services" for each department.

In the last legislative session Russell attempted to institute a procedure by which the General Assembly would assign salaries for each employee of state government in the budget.

THERE SHOULD BE A LAW

In these days of increasing foreign travel, it is wise to know a bit about the laws of the lands you visit. The standards for keeping out of trouble vary around the world.

Take Sunday, for example. In England it is illegal to beat your wife on Sunday or play billiards. And in Yorkshire it is illegal not to have Yorkshire pudding with roast beef on Sunday. Sunday newspapers are prohibited in Ireland and Australia, and in Teruel, Spain, no one may take a heated bath on Sunday. Some English towns say that there shall be no whistling on Sundays after 9 p.m., that churchgoing shall be on foot, that there shall be no cigarette smoking on the street and no telling fortunes with tea leaves.

A pig has the right to travel on railroads in England providing it has a ticket and is accompanied by a person. But it is illegal for people to share a taxi, or eavedrop in restaurants or on buses.

Bermuda says there shall be no bicycle riding while under the influence of alcohol, and public profanity is prohibited. Brazil says you may not appear on the streets without wearing a coat, or carry a suitcase on a first- class trolley car. In Para, Brazil, there shall be no singing in the streets. Sao Paulo provides that any prisoner arriving at the jail after 10 p.m. will not be admitted until the next morning.

The men in Bogata, Colombia, apparently don't trust their policemen. These are prohibited from speaking to women, especially female servants, while on duty. In Italy policemen are expected to prevent kissing on the streets, or holding hands in a park -- and a wife may not rest her head on her husband's shoulder while traveling. When in Italy you may kiss in public only in railroad stations.

In the Philippine Islands drawing or sculpturing a nude figure is punishable, as is the bicycle riding of a man with a woman. But when you are in Japan, you are considered within your legal rights should you wish to undress in public.

And for weapons -- Bombay, India, prohibts carrying a penknife or steel pen within the city limits. In Spain you cannot hit a man with an egg, a bottle, or a cucumber. And don't splash water on a policeman in Guatemala, or you will surely spend some time in the pokey. Ambitious young ladies wishing to work in Australia should remember that no woman under the age of forty-five may work as a chorus girl there.

As you may note, we didn't discuss some of the strange laws in the various states of the United States -- but that is another field of research if we can get around to it.

A NEW COMMUNIST THREAT

Intelligence sources in Washington have reported that the Russians have successfully test- fired missiles from submarines at ranges up to 4,900 miles. The U.S., these sources say, has no submarine missiles with anything comparable to that range. This alarming news means that Soviet submarines can hide off the coast of Norway and strike any city in the U. S. with nuclear weapons. Submarines used as launching pads have a great advantage over land-based missile launchers. They can strike and then run and hide against retaliation.

Our naval margin over the Soviets has long since disappeared. The U. S. still has powerful aircraft carriers but they may prove highly vulnerable in a nuclear war. Meanwhile, the Russians are adding to their surface fleet of missile- firing cruisers and destroyers. The presence of these surface ships in the Mediterranean Sea and Indian Ocean already have had a profound influence on diplomatic relations of the great nations.

All of this points out the need for great emphasis on national defense of the U. S. Our naval defenses, along with land and air, must be strengthened. Whatever our domestic economic woes might be, the national survival issue remains paramount. The rebuilding of the merchant marine is of parallel importance. Sea communications have to be maintained and protected by a strong fleet. All citizens of this Republic should urge a great national effort in holding the line against future communist aggression. If we don't, there will be no need to worry about the economy or anything else. Our independence must be protected. HLH

SHOULD ROCKEFELLER PAY NIXON?

By Art Buchwald

WASHINGTON-- The two major political problems in this country this week are that Nelson Rockefeller seems to have too much money and Richard Nixon doesn't seem to have enough.

Last Friday the headlines said Rocky was throwing around money like a drunken congressman, while the Justice Department had made a deal to defend Richard Nixon's Watergate civil suits at no cost to him.

This angered many people in the country, including Selwyn Mimser who called in a rage. "Why should I as a taxpayer have to foot Nixon's legal fees?"

"Because," I said, "that's the way they do it over at Justice. They feel they owe Nixon something."

"Why doesn't Rocky give him the money?" Mimser wanted to know.

"Why should Rockefeller give him any money?" I asked.

"Because if Nixon hadn't resigned, Rockefeller wouldn't be the vice- presidential

"That's true, but Rockefeller can't just give money to (ital) everybody (unital). After all, there's even a limit to his fortune," I said.

"How do you know that?"

He had me there. "I'm just guessing there's a limit. There is, isn't there?"

"Why are you asking me?" Selwyn wanted to know. "Anyway I think we should make Rocky promise to take care of Nixon for the rest of his life."

"That's not cheap," I warned Selwyn. "Nixon likes a lot of perks, such as servants, chauffeurs, secretaries, ghostwriters, not to mention a press secretary and a large office staff."

"Rocky can handle it," Selwyn assured me. "At least, he can afford it more than we can."

"But," I said, "there could be a conflict of interest. Suppose Nixon ran for public office again? If he had accepted a gift of money he'd be under obligation to Rockefeller."

"If you read Rockefeller's statements he has never given anybody money except as a gesture of appreciation and friendship. Not once has he taken advantage of the gifts."

"You know that," I said, "and I know that. But does Nixon know it? I think you have a good idea, but it won't fly. We, the public, should give Nixon anything he asks for and not leave it up to the Rockefellers of this world.

"While I'm the first to agree that this country should economize, I don't believe it should be at the expense of an ex- President who was forced to resign because he was up to his ears in the obstruction of justice for which he has been given a full and unqualified pardon."

"Well it was just an idea," Selwyn said. "You don't have to get sore at me."

"I'm sorry. I lost my cool," I said. "But you have to admit, we've reached a sorry point in this country when we question a man who gives one or two million dollars away to people he has a deep affection for."

"I wasn't questioning that," Mimser protested. "All I was suggesting was a way to take care of Nixon's legal and household bills without sticking the taxpayer. Gerry Ford did ask us to think of ways of saving money."

"He also said it was time we forgave Rockefeller," I said, "because he's suffered enough."

JACK ANDERSON SAYS: The Vulnerable Airports

WASHINGTON --New secret documents tell of 18 busy world airports which are open to Arab terrorsist attack because of lax security of their location in guerrilla -infested areas.

The new survey by the Federal Aviation Administration supercedes one this summer turned up by Rep. John Murphy, D -N.Y., a House air safety expert. When we printed the names of the eight "most vulnerable" airports then, we were criticized for breaking the seal of secrecy on calssified FAA documents.

But we reasoned that travelers had a right to that information, and now the new survey seems to bear us out. The current FAA study shows that London, which we listed as a security horror story, is now much improved. New Delhi and Bangkik have been dropped from the earlier list.

In any case, according to U.S. intelligence reports, the Fedayeen already know which airports are easy marks.

The new study, classified "For Official Use Only," names the 18 "High Risk Foreigh Airports" as Rome, Frankfurt, Amsterdam, Geneva, Zuirch, Madrid, Beirut, Athens, Tel Aviv, Paris, Munich, London, Istanbul, Vienna, Brussels, Barcelona, Copenhagen and Lisbon.

Terrorists have struck most frequently, the documents, say, at Munich where 11 incidents have occurrred. The FAA probers cite West Germany's "close Israeli ties" as one reason for the attacks. Second, with five episodes, is Rome. Athens and Beirut have had four each and Frankfurt and Amsterdam have had three.

Beirut and Tel Aviv are priased by the FAA for doing their best, but they are classified "High Risk" because of their location in the volatile Middle East. London has improved mightily, but is still listed because of the large number of flights, particularly departures bound for the United States.

Zurich and Geneva are branded as risks for an intriguing reason. Arab terrorists, according to the FAA's intelligence, are angry over Switzerland's willingness to allow a Geneva peace conference on the Middle East.

"Attacks at this time would be aimed at disrupting peace conference and as punishment of Swiss for allowing the cnference," the FAA study says.

FOOTNOTE: Murphy pushed through a law permitting an embargo on flights between the United States and countries with risk - prone airports. In private correspondence Murphy has been urging the Department of Transportation to begin enforcing the law.

BIRCH BARK: President Ford warmly embraced C.R. Lewis, a prominent John Birch Society member, when he came to Washington recently.

Lewis is running for the Senate in Alaska on the Republican ticket, so Ford posed with Lewis for the traditional hand -shaking scene for campaign use. The President even threw in and extra picture of them strolling together and a "Dear C.R." letter telling Lewis: "I am looking forward to working with you in the Senate."

The John Birch Society showed its appreciation later by ripping Ford apart in its "The Review of the News," which featured a full -page ad for Lewis' contracting firm.

"One cannot escape the feeling," declared the Bircher publication, "that Gerald Ford is under a discipline and serving a radical cause..

"When the scripts calls for declaring that American youth should prepare to emulate the example of young slaves in the concentration camp that is Red China Gerald Ford follows the script."

In sum, said the article, the President is a "hustler for Chariman Mao."

FOOTNOTE: The White House declined comment on the endorsement of the John Birch candidate. But at the GOP campaign committee, a spokesman told us the candiate's philopsphy weighs far less than "whether he can win."

WATCH ON WASTE: The Air Force shipped 350 personnel officers across the nation to San Antonio for conference on management efficiency. The object was to save money for the taxpayers. Sources familiar with such conferences suggest, on the contrary, that it cost the taxpayers more than will be saved.

Just the per diem bills turned in by the 350 conferees added up to $52,000 . An Air Force spokesman told us: "There is now way to figure travel costs."

WASHINGTON WHIRL: In a stern memo to his staff, Interior Secretary Rogers Morton told them their junketing has reached "unreasonable proportions" and must be cut back. Morton's own recent junkets include trips to Maine, the Gulf Coast, Mississippi and Alabama.. A White House aide, who defied the demands of the Watergate crew, is returning to government as the Interior Dept.'s communications chief. He is Bill Rhatican, who single -handedly stopped the Nixon campaign from politicizing the White House anti -drug program.. We reported recently that Army recruiters had been signing up misfits and even criminals in their eagerness to reach recruiting goals. Army Secretary Howard Callaway has now written us pledging: "We are making a sincere attempt to eliminate all irregularities -from Army recruiting. I hope the unfortunate practices used in the past by a few Army recruiters will not detract from the overall outstanding success of our recruiting efforts" ...The Marine Corps recruiting slogan, "The Marines Are Looking for a Few Good Men," has irritated a lot of women. A group calling themselves the Federally Employed Women has accused the leathernecks of discriminating against women in their recruitment program.

Socialist World Threat: British Labor Government Set To Create Unique "Union -State'

NEW YORK --Suave and cultured British Prime Minister Harold Wilson --who is second only to Dick Nixon in his distaste for the press --has been scoring the disquieting success of the fiddle salesman in Nero's palace. As a result, it's quite likely the United Kingdom will go the way of Nero's Rome while the world fiddles.

It's not understood in the United States --but the British Labor party's parliamentary vicotory last week is a victory for a very viable internaitonal socialist movement. Should the government of the urbane Mr. Wilson last four to five years, the Socialist and Communist Internationals will be competing with each other for the honor of destroying world capitalism. This may well be accomplished by a series of 'Union -States" drawing political and philosophical-- perhaps financial --strength from Britian's newest laborite government.

The impact of such phenomena on American multinational corporations and jobs will be awesome. In effect, though gentler and in more civilized fashion, it all will result in the governmental control of world industries, just as though they were seized by scored of Allendes.

It's not necessary to growl or impugn the personal characters of the fantastically cultured British Laborite government leaders. They are socialitists. They attend Socialist International Bureau party meetings. They plan to "socialist -ize" the free world. And just a few hours after Harold Wilson was assured reelection, he said frankly he has no intention of "watering down" the Labor party's socialist programs.

Just what this means needs no other explanation than the words of the quiet -spoken , bookish Len Murray, leader of the British labor movement known as the Trades Union Congress (TUC). Murray's philosophy is revolution by evolution.

This means the state, which now for all intents actually is the TUC, slowly will take over all production in Britian. This will include the automobile industry, for example. Therefore, I believe American companies such as Ford, General Motors and the Chrysler combine U.K. installatins will be nationalized.

There is no mystery, no secrecy, in the TUC plans for a union -state. It's all on paper. People just don't read.

In London recently, I examined a sheaf of papers containing the nationalization plans of both the TUC and the Labor Party which it controls through their joint "Liaison Committee." "The TUC is seeking to extend the rights of workeres by developing collective bargaining and by establishing new forms of joint control over major policy decisions in industry," said one recently issued document

"The TUC will want to see a rapid growth of democracy in industry by a new Companies Act.. As for the private sector the TUC wishes each large company to have a supervisory board and a management board. It would be able to overrule the board of management, the annual meeting of shareholders or the owners on all major decisions, such as technological changes, mergers, takeovers, or investment plans. The TUC plan is for half the members of supervisory boards to be workers' representatives appointed through their unions."

Note, please, the word "each" and the power given to labor's leaders in "each" company. Whether Mr. Wilson, with a narrow -parliamentary margin, will attempt to push through this side -door nationalizaiton by turning corporate control over to the unions, it's too early to predict.

But it appears certain the left -wingers, the shop stewards on the shop floor, will have a bloody good time whipping up the rank and file. There's already constant malaise where the production is. Just a few weeks ago the British -based Ford Motor Company saw several hundred of its key workers strike over such items as wash - up time. Supplies ran short. (The same tactics have broken out in the U.S..) Tens of thousands of British Ford workers had to be laid off. Result: the loss of car and truck production worth some $95 million retail.

This same strike -happiness has hit the big Canadian -owned Massey -Ferguson, Ltd., British establishment to such a damaging extent that it will soon be producing its diesel engines in the Federal Republic of Germany.

Ford is building a plant in Spain. This has given British labor leaders the jitters. And this will be a special part of the agenda when the Ford World Auto Council division of the International Metalworkers' Federation meets in London Nov. 4 and 5 at the New Ambassadors Hotel. Planning to attend is Ken Bannon, United States Workers vice president in charge of the Detroit union's Ford section.

They should be worried. Why should big American corporations wait quietly for a rendezvous with a socialist takeover? Why should major American corporations, in which hundreds of thousands of American middle class and even working "class" folk hold stock, wait to be nationalized? And what of the pension fund holdings?

But this is the era of the old socialists' last hurray. Many of them such as Secretary of State for Employment Mike Foot, a brilliant chap disdainful of the intellect of non -socialists, have fought all their lives for this moment of socialist glory. They're not about to let the years pass. I believe they're playing with economic fire while the rest of the free world fiddles.

Mr. and Mrs. Curtis Michael Jobe

Pamela Pry marries Curtis Michael Jobe

CHARLESTON — Pamela Kim Pry and Curtis Michael Jobe were united in marriage at 2 p.m. Sept. 28 in First Baptist Church. The Rev. Thomas Wilks officiated at the double- ring ceremony.

The bride is the daughter of Mrs. Peggy Pry, Route One, and Dewey Pry of Little Rock, Ark. Jobe is the son of Mr. and Mrs. Curtis Jobe of 315 Sand Road, Bertrand.

Dot Tinsley and Mollie Brown presided over the guest register, which was placed in the vestibule of the church. The table was covered with a white satin cloth with a net overlay and held a silver pen holder.

Matt Bryant served as organist and played traditional wedding music. Jill Brown sang, "The Wedding Song", and Sandi Sutherland sang, "The Lord's Prayer".

The altar of the church was decorated with a large arrangement of daisies, pompoms, gladioli and mums against an arrangement of greenery on the choir rail. An arch candelabrum holding white tapers was flanked on either side by tree candelabra decorated with an arrangement of greenery and white satin bows. A white kneeling bench was used by the couple.

The pews for the bride's family were marked with greenery and bows of yellow, white and green. Pews for the groom's family were marked with greenery and yellow and green bows.

The bride, given in marriage by her father, wore a formal gown of ivory delustered satin and re-embroidered Alencon lace. The slightly raised bodice featured a high fitted neckline overlaid with Alencon lace and re-embroidered with pearls. The sleeves were long and fitted, with trumpet cuffs, overlaid with lace. A smocked panel of organza edged in wide lace accented the front bodice and the front of the A-line skirt.

A wide band of lace encircled the lower portion of the skirt, which swept into an attached chapel- length train. Her chapel- length veil of ivory illusion was edged with wide Alencon lace that fell from an ivory satin band. She carried a bouquet of yellow roses surrounded by white daisies and baby's breath tied with white streamers.

The gowns were yellow and green, respectively. Both girls wore white carnation wristlets.

Mark Pry, brother of the bride, served as best man, and Steve Sisk of Bertrand was groomsman. Dan Choate and Tim Morrow served as ushers.

The men of the bridal party wore black tuxedos, with the exception of the groom who wore a white tuxedo. All wore yellow rosebud boutonnieres.

The bride's mother wore a formal- length green halter gown with matching jacket and a white carnation corsage. The groom's mother wore a formal- length gown with solid aqua bodice and floral print skirt. She also wore a white carnation corsage.

Following the ceremony, a reception was held in the church dining hall.

The refreshment table was overlaid with a floor-length cloth of white satin and an overdrape of white net White net swags were caught up at each corner by yellow mum nosegays.

At one end of the table was the crystal punch bowl, and at the other was a four-tiered wedding cake decorated in yellow and green and topped with wedding bells. A silver bowl filled with yellow mums and two three- branched candelabra holding burning yellow tapers centered the table. A silver compote held the nuts, and mints were placed on silver trays.

Ann Landers

Counseling may be needed

Dear Ann Landers: My sister was widowed at the age of 32. Her husband left her with two sons. One suffered a brain injury at birth and had to be hospitalized when he was five. The other boy is slightly retarded, but the doctors say he can stay in regular schools for a while at least. That boy is now nine years of age.

Last month we learned that my sister has terminal cancer. There is no one else who can take the older boy and I feel it is my responsibility to raise him. I have already told my sister that I would, so it's settled.

My husband is a wonderful person but he is concerned about the problems that face us. First, our own son and daughter (10 and 13) do not get along very well with one another, and they both resent the presence of their nine-year-old cousin. (He is staying with us while his mother is in the hospital for treatment.) I try to get them to be patient with the lad but they are really mean to him.

Last night the girl was teasing the boy because he wets the bed. He went into the clothes closet and I heard him sobbing.

Please, Ann, tell me how I can equip myself for the job ahead. I need help.--Worried ABout the Future

Dear Friend: First: Contact your local mental health facilities about family counseling. I believe you could all profit from it.

Next: Send for a subscription to the "The Exceptional Parent," P.O. Box 964, Manchester, N.H. 03105. This magazine is for parents of handicapped children. It deals with family-life issues, sibling relationships, sex education, and has a wealth of information on how to cope with problems of children who are emotionally disturbed as well as physically handicapped. I recommend it highly.

Dear Annn Landers: My brother's son is to be married soon. The girl's parents, at her insistence, are giving her a big wedding, complete with white gown, veil, reception, etc.

The joker is that the couple hab been living together for four years. I refuse to attend the wedding and am being severely criticized. Several relatives have reminded me that it is everyone's right to choose his own lifestyle. I agree, but I also maintain that it is MY right to refuse to honor or reward a lifestyle which I consider immoral by contributing my presence or my presents.

I am pleased the couple has decided to marry, but I believe it should be done in a quiet ceremony. Ath the very least, the girl should have the decency not to wear a white bridal gown.

This is becoming a family crisis. Your opinion, please.--C.M.

Dear C.M.: You were invited to be a guest, not to sit in judgment on the couple's lifestyle. In that same context, what the bride chooses the wear is up to her.

If you refuse to attend this wedding you will cast a small cloud over the day for your brother and his family. That cloud will hang over your head for a long time to come. If you take my advice you'll go.

Confidential to Should We or Shouldn't we? Do as you please, but I offer you Florida Governor Reubin Askew's priceless remark: "We don't serve alcoholic beverages in the mansion and it's amazing how early people go home when you don't serve them liquor."

Even if drinking is the "in" thing in your crowd, it needn't crowd you out. Learn the facts from Ann Landers's booklet, "Booze and You--For Teen-Agers Only." Send 35 cents in coin and a long, self-addressed, stamped envelope to Ann Landers, P.O. Box 1400, Elgin, Ill. 60120.

Family budget increase predicted for year 2000

CHICAGO (AP) — Salaries up by 177 per cent — sound impossible?

No, not if you look into the crystal ball at the year 2000.

"And that is good news for the family budget custodian," says a recent report. Offering a glimpse of how 21st-century families will be living, the report from the financial services arm of Esmark predicts that income for a husband and wife with two school age children will average $38,041 — compared to today's $13,721.

Homemakers will delight in the fact that food costs will be down.

"Approximately 23.6 per cent of gross income will be spent on filling the family larder, as opposed to 25.3 per cent today. Modern, automated food processing technologies will help bring food prices down.

"Shelter will go up slightly compared to 1974. Americans today spend roughly 24.5 per cent of their income for housing — 25 per cent will be spent in 2000."

The forecast is for more of the family dollar going into savings, insurance and investments 25 years hence — 8 per cent. The probability of longer life for the average American will automatically trigger the need for meaningful retirement programs.

R and R — rest and recreation — will figure prominently in the 21st-century budget.

"With more leisure time and shorter work weeks families will earmark a larger share of the familial pocketbook — 5 per cent — to recreational activities.

"The family of 2000 will also have very definitive attitudes on where they live," the report emphasizes.

"Planned communities — now in their infancy — will be the futuristic life style. These new towns will feature one-stop living, work and play areas.

"Taxes will probably take a bigger bite from the income — simply because of an over-all increase. But, by and large, things look good for the budget of year 2000."

More money, better health, easier life and more recreation in the year 2000?

"Emphatically yes," the report concludes.

A Labor Department report punctures the belief that single working women are weaker and less reliable than men. "Women workers," the report says "have favorable records of attendance and labor turnover when compared with men employed at similar job levels." The report found that single women stayed out sick for shorterperiods, went home mainly with "acute illness" and changed jobs less often than males.

Women can save 50 per cent by sewing

Almost everything costs more today -- gas, food, appliances. All of us are trying to find ways to save a little here and there. The cost of clothing has also risen in the past few years, and this is an area where the woman who sews can often save 50 per cent or more by making her clothing.

In a recent survey conducted by The Wool Bureau, Inc., 74 per cent of women who sew said the reason was that it's less expensive than purchasing ready made garments. Other reasons for sewing were individualism and creativity (being able to choose fabric, style and color themselves), better fit and better quality.

There's a myriad of pattern styles and fabrics to choose from. Since about half the savings in making a garment at home is the labor, a woman can afford to use the quality fabrics she often cannot afford in ready - to wear.

Remember, the garments you make yourself are extra special because you put a part of yourself into each of them. Sew with the best quality fabrics to make the best quality garments.

Enrollment of women in engineering soars

COLUMBIA-- From 1856 until the present, about 8,500 men have earned bachelor of science degrees in engineering at University of Missouri- Columbia. More than half a century went by, however, before the first engineering degree was awarded to a woman by UMC.

In the 60 years or so that followed, a total of only 16 women have graduated from the Columbia campus with B.S. degrees in this traditionally male discipline.

But look what's happening now!

From an all- time enrollment high several years ago of 16 women in UMC's College of Engineering, this figure jumped to 41 in 1973 and to 75 this semester.

Why this dramatic increase?

A combination of reasons, according to Dr. Jack W. Morgan, assistant dean and placement director of UMC engineering.

"Women have always had the ability to become engineers," he said. "Elementary and secondary school girls have historically earned better grades than boys in both math and science. And these are the basis of an engineering education.

"However, it took the women's liberation movement, plus pressures from equal- opportunity advocates, to convince employers that women can fill their technical vacancies just as capably as men. It has been largely during the past five years that the barrier of stereotyped occupations for women has been lifted noticeably."

Women engineers are eagerly sought by company interviewers recruiting on the nation's campuses. It's also a matter of record that new B. S. degree women engineers are getting a slightly higher average starting salary than their male classmates.

Right now, that's better than $12,000 a year. . .and climbing.

"But the money isn't an overriding factor," said Dean Morgan. "Many of the new areas of engineering, especially those concerned with the environment, health- care services, bioengineering, water and air pollution control, energy, etc., offer many young women greater personal satisfaction than some of their more traditional career choices."

He predicts that the number of women students in UMC's College of Engineering will continue to increase.

"Because," he said, "of the 1,250,000 engineers in the U. S. today, only about two per cent are women. The field is wide open.'

R-1 school district has 4,843 enrolled

HOWARDVILLE — New Madrid County R-1 Enlarged School District has enrolled 4,843 students, an increase of 57 students over the 4,786 enrolled at the end of the first month of school last year.

Enrollment for each unit includes: Lilbourn, 1,186; Matthews, 722; New Madrid, 1,022; Parma, 545; and Portageville, 1,368.

At the end of the first month of school, the best attendance in the district was for students in the New Madrid unit, with 96.9 per cent attendance. The average for the district was 96.1 per cent.

The best percentage of attendance for teachers was earned by the teachers at the vocational - technical skills center.

The district employs 319 teachers and administrators and 263 non-certified personnel.

The Title I program this year has been expanded to include a full- day kindergarten program for selected students. It has been necessary to add mobile housing units at Lilbourn, New Madrid, Parma and Portageville to house these extended programs. The mobile units are furnished through Title I funds and are air-conditioned and equipped with tie-downs.

They are being used by approximately 180 kindergarten students and various other elementary children in Title I remedial activities.

The vocational - technical skills center has enrolled over 450 juniors and seniors from across the district in the 16 different course areas, plus approximately 100 juniors and seniors attending advanced math, advanced science and language arts courses at the vocational center.

About 515 of the 600 juniors and seniors in the district have classes at the vocational center for half a day or more.

Over 200 adults are enrolled in courses in business data processing, business machines, beginning typing, beginning accounting, ocy-acy welding, beginning air conditioning and refrigeration, auto engine diagnosis and trouble shooting, beginning carpentry, beginning drafting, farm mechanics and electronics.

A course in diesel injector pump repair and calibration is conducted on Wednesday and Thursday nights for enrollees that cover a radius of over 100 miles, including persons from Cape Girardeau, Jackson, Sikeston, Kennett, Leachville, Ark., and Piggott, Ark.

A college level vocational course for vocational teachers is held on Tuesday nights. The instructor is a member of the Southeast Missouri State University faculty. Enrollees include teachers from Kennett, Sikeston, Malden and Wappapello, as well as New Madrid County R-1 instructors.

Another adult course offered by the district is a 27-hour workshop conducted from 3 to 6 p.m. for nine weeks for the 43 cooks employed by the district.

The State Department of Education again will hold a regional educational workshop at the vocational complex on Nov. 13. The one- day workshop will involve approximately 300 persons representing 50 school districts across the Southeast Missouri area.

The following testing program and schedule has been adopted for the 1974-75 school year, following a meeting of counselors and administrators:

The Metropolitan Readiness Test, which evaluates the significant aspects of readiness for formal first grade instruction, will be administered to all kindergarten classes in April.

The new 1973 Stanford Achievement Test, which will measure pupil achievement in all major areas of the current curriculum, will be given to grades one through eight during the week of March 24-27.

The California Test of Mental Maturity, which provides for the assessment of general mental ability, or scholastic aptitude, will be administered to students in grades three, five, seven and nine. Grades five, seven and nine will be tested in November. The grade three test will be administered in February.

The General Aptitude Test Battery, which is designed to assist students with their educational and vocational planning, will be administered in January to students in grade 10.

The Missouri School and College Ability Test, which measures intellectual capacity, will be given to grade 11 students in March.

New Madrid County R-1 students will not be in session on Nov. 8. This day has been set aside for a workshop and training day for all certified and non- certified employes of the district.

A series of grade level and subject area planning sessions will be held throughout the day for all teachers and administrators in the various units of the district. The other employes of the district will be involved in various activities on that day.

Plans are being made for an all- district art fair in April, giving students in the district an opportunity for recognition in this area.

The week of Oct. 27 through Nov. 2 is designated as American Education Week. Parents are being encouraged by the board of education, administrators and teachers to visit in the schools.

2 tires, rims stolen

EAST PRAIRIE— Police are investigating a break- in at Leslie Armstrong's Sinclair Station on East Main Street and the theft of two automobile tires and rims from Billy Smithton's used car lot on South Washington Drive.

Both incidents occurred Wednesday night and were reported this morning.

An undetermined amount of money was taken from the pinball, cigarette and soft-drink vending machines and change was taken from a cash register at the station. Entry was gained by breaking out a window.

The tires and rims were removed from an automobile parked at the used car lot.

CHURCHES HAVE FIRE HAZARDS

The number of fires is increasing annually. A campaign booklet lists six things to do if fire occurs and 60 things to check to try to prevent it.

What's the law?

The case of the unemployed politician

By: JACK STRAUSS, LL.B.

Fred decided to try the most promising of all careers--politics. He quit his job and ran for political office.

After winning the election, however, he found himself with a problem. He wasn't to take office for three months and he had no income during that time.

Consequently, he applied to get his old job back. His ex-employer, however, wasn't one of his loyal constituents and turned him down colder than a Siberian nudist. Undismayed, Fred applied for unemployment benefits.

"A person can't collect unemployment benefits unless he's available to work," he was told. "And since you're going to take over your political job in three months, you're not available."

"Hogwash!" was Fred's answer. "I'm as available as my maiden aunt. What happens in three months is irrelevant. I'm available for work right now and that's what counts. Consequently, I'm entitled to collect."

IF YOU WERE JUDGE, would you grant unemployed Fred unemployment benefits?

This is how the judge ruled: NO! The judge held that Fred was not available for work since he would have to leave his job to take over his political office. What's more, noted the judge, he was further disqualified from receiving benefits for the additional reason that he left his employment without good cause; that running for political office is not "good cause" for leaving a job.

Railroad retirement bill enacted

WASHINGTON (AP) — A bill authorizing the government to put $7.1 billion into the financially troubled railroad retirement system has been enacted into law by Congress over President Ford's veto.

The Senate voted 72-1 Wednesday to approve the bill, marking the first time Congress rejected a veto from Ford. The House voted 360-12 Tuesday to override. Both votes were far more than the necessary two-thirds.

The new law will restructure the railroad retirement system and pump $285 million in federal money into it annually for the next 25 years.

Ford criticized the bill as too expensive and said Congress should come up with a plan that puts less of a burden on taxpayers.

However, Congress decided that a vote to sustain the veto would be politically dangerous since the alternative to a federal subsidy would be a substantial reduction in pensions now being received.

There are about 1 million retired rail workers and survivors now receiving pension checks. The 600,000 workers currently on railroad payrolls also are covered by the system.

House votes to cut off aid

WASHINGTON (AP) — The 194-144 roll call by which the House voted Wednesday on cutting off military aid to Turkey earlier than Dec. 10 if Turkey sends U.S. equipment to its forces on Cyprus included:

(A yes vote was a vote to cut off aid. An x means not voting).

Kansas—Roy, D, x; Sebelius, R, no; Shriver, R, no; Skubitz, R, no; Winn, R, x.

Missouri—Bolling, D, x; Burlison, D, no; Clay, D, yes; Hungate, D, yes; Ichord, D, no; Litton, D, x; Randall, D, yes; Sullivan, D, yes; Symington, D, yes; Taylor, R, x.

Summer grade fuel needed

JEFFERSON CITY — Boat owners should purchase gasoline refined specifically for summer consumption, J. W. Abbot, director of the Weights and Measures Division of the Missouri Department of Agriculture recently said in a letter to Missouri marina and resort owners.

"Purchase your summer requirements of gasoline during the summer months," he said, "do not allow your supplier to fill your storage during the winter months from product which has been refined for winter consumption."

Vapor pressure allowed for fuel intended for use in internal combustion engines varies. Winter fuel is refined with a higher pressure.

According to Missouri statutes, the vapor pressure at 100 degrees Fahrenheit cannot exceed 13.5 pounds per square inch in the winter months, and during June, July, August and September, the limit is 9.5 pounds per square inch.

Abbot's warning came after several boats had exploded during the past summer, damaging both property and lives. "Vapor, not gasoline, was the culprit," he said.

Abbot pledged the assistance of his office and the Missouri Department of Agriculture to anyone with questions about fuel purchased for summer consumption.

Further information may be obtained by writing to Missouri Department of Agriculture, Weights and Measures Division, Box 630, Jefferson City, Mo. 65101, or by phoning 751-4278.

Ford says no deal behind pardon

WASHINGTON (AP) — President Ford, in a historic personal appearance before a congressional panel, said today he discussed the possibility of pardoning Richard M. Nixon if he resigned as president, but declared there was no deal behind the subsequent pardon.

Reading a lengthy statement in matter-of-fact tones, Ford told the nationally broadcast House Judiciary subcommittee hearing that "I assure you that there never was at any time any agreement whatsoever concerning a pardon to Mr. Nixon if he were to resign and I were to become President."

It was the first documented appearance of a sitting President before a congressional panel, and Ford said he agreed to voluntarily testify to fully and fairly present the facts behind his pardon of Nixon.

From the witness chair in the same room where the full Judiciary Committee conducted its hearings three months ago on Nixon's impeachment, Ford made these major disclosures:

—On Aug. 1 and 2, at meetings with Nixon's staff chief, Alexander M. Haig, and Nixon's chief attorney, James D. St. Clair, there was discussion of a pardon for Nixon if he resigned — as Nixon did on Aug. 9. But Ford said he made clear that "nothing we had talked about ... should be given any consideration" by Nixon in deciding whether to resign.

—The only condition he placed on the pardon he granted Sept. 8 was that Nixon would accept it.

—He had no reports from physicians or psychiatrists on Nixon's health, but did talk to others who had seen Nixon after he resigned. But these reports "were not a controlling factor in my decision."

—He has decided that pardon requests of other Watergate figures will be routed through the Justice Department and he will consider them only after they are so processed.

His statement concluded, Ford answered questions put by subcommittee members in turn, and firmly rejected any suggestion that there would have been reason for Haig to advise Nixon prior to his resignation that he might be pardoned if he quit the White House.

The question was raised by Rep. Don Edwards, D-Calif., and Ford replied: "None whatsoever. Categorically no."

Ford said he discussed the pardon with Haig on Aug. 1 only because the Nixon adviser had told him of various options being considered in the White House, and asked him for any recommendations he might make. "I had none," Ford said.

Edwards also noted that mercy was one of the considerations in the Nixon pardon, and asked whether the same consideration might now apply to the five men now on trial in Washington for the Watergate coverup.

"In light of the fact that these trials are being carried out at the present time, I think it's inadviseable for me to comment on any of the proceedings at those trials," Ford replied.

Much of the questioning provided only a review of what Ford had said earlier, in his White House statements and in his prepared testimony.

In his prepared statement, Ford detailed repeated contacts he had as vice president with Haig and St. Clair on Aug. 1 and 2.

Hospital can provide new emergency aid

HAYTI — A demonstration was held at Pemiscot County Memorial Hospital for Military Assistance to Safety and Traffic (MAST), program utilizing military helicopters and medical corpsmen to assist local emergency medical service systems by providing assistance to civilian victims of traffic accidents and other medical emergencies.

"We have arranged for such a program," Joseph Brown, administrator of the hospital, said Tuesday. "We feel that it will speed up medical assistance in an emergency and cut down on traffic fatalities. We will call T. Campbell in case of a severe emergency, such as a tornado, industrial explosion, etc."

Brown said he was "very impressed" with a demonstration on how the program works at the hospital shortly after noon Tuesday. He added that the regional planning commission was also impressed.

The MAST demonstration and a meeting — including a film about the program — was given by personnel of the Air Ambulance Platoon 326th Medical Battalion, Fort Campbell, Ky.

Local hospital personnel, chairman of the hospital board Julian Boyd, other board members, doctors from Memphis and other interested people attended the demonstration.

It was mentioned at the meeting that better patient care in medical emergencies is accomplished by transporting patients from the scene of the emergency to the appropriate medical facility, inter-hospital transfer of critical patients, and transportation of medical specialists and equipment to the emergency scene by helicopter.

Existing personnel and equipment from active duty Army aeromedical and Air Force aerospace rescue and recovery units are involved. These military personnel work in cooperation with local health care providers and law enforcement officials according to a locally developed plan between the civilian and military communities.

The basic Army air ambulance is a UH-1H model helicopter, dubbed the "Huey". It is capable of carrying the crew of four plus three litter and four ambulatory patients at any one time. It is capable of flying at 137 miles per hour for two hours without refueling. Special equipment such as portable incubators can be transported easily.

The crew consists of a pilot and a co-pilot, both of which have backgrounds in emergency medical treatment; a highly skilled medical corpsman; and a crew chief, who is cross-trained to assist the medic when necessary. The medical equipment carried on board the aircraft is limited. However, it is adequate for emergency medical treatment and can be supplemented, if necessary.

The proposed Fort Campbell MAST Area will take in the area within a 100 nautical mile radius from Fort Campbell. Approximately one million people live and work within the confines of the proposed operating area. Service will be extended to over 128 medical facilities in 94 communities which dot the area.

Happy Rockefeller undergoes surgery for breast cancer

NEW YORK (AP) — Vice President-designate Nelson A. Rockefeller announced today that his wife, Happy, was undergoing surgery for breast cancer.

He described the surgery as a radical mastectomy in the left breast. He said the surgery started at 8:30 a.m. in Sloan Kettering Memorial Hospital.

"I'm confident that it's going to come out. All I can say is 'thank God' that she got in and that this country has such wonderful doctors," Rockefeller told a news conference in his Manhattan office.

The surgery came about a week after Betty Ford, wife of the President, left the hospital after undergoing a mastectomy herself.

Asked how it would affect his pending nomination for the vice presidency, Rockefeller responded: "I think at this time perhaps all of us should be thinking about Happy."

Rockefeller opened the news conference by telling reporters, "You won't believe what I'm going to tell you."

He said that Happy had discovered a lump in her breast last Friday. He said there were three small nodules.

He said that his wife was probably a little more conscious of the danger of breast cancer since the recent operation on President Ford's wife.

"As just one more family, we're just very grateful that it led to a checkup," he said.

World News in Brief

WASHINGTON (AP) — President Ford today vetoed an attempt by Congress at a legislative compromise on cutting off weapons aid to Turkey and the House failed to override the veto.

WASHINGTON (AP) — After 97 years, Congress finally has accepted a massive gift of 19th century memorabilia but it has to wait until July 4, 1976 to be sure exactly what it contains. The gift is an iron safe packed — according to the best available information — with momentoes of the 1876 national centennial celebration. Congress has had physical possession of the safe since 1877 when Mrs. Charles F. Deihm of New York, described in records as a publisher, a dedicated patriot and a Civil War widow, turned it over with the materials she had toured the country to collect. She requested that it be opened on the bicentennial day by the President.

MILAN, Italy (AP) — Duke Ludovico Melzi d'Eril and his wife Bianca, members of one of Italy's most prominent families, today were back at their villa near here after touring Europe for four months with a self-styled "Christ on earth."

The 68-year-old duke and his wife, 62, turned up in Geneva on Tuesday, the first time they had been seen since June 22 when they joined the sect of former Roman Catholic priest Rino Ferraro. An Italian judge has issued an arrest warrant for Ferraro, accused by the duke's family of talking the duke into financing the sect.

Police said the former priest was believed to have gone to West Germany last week, leaving his sect with no money, after telling the members to sit and pray because the world would end on Sunday.

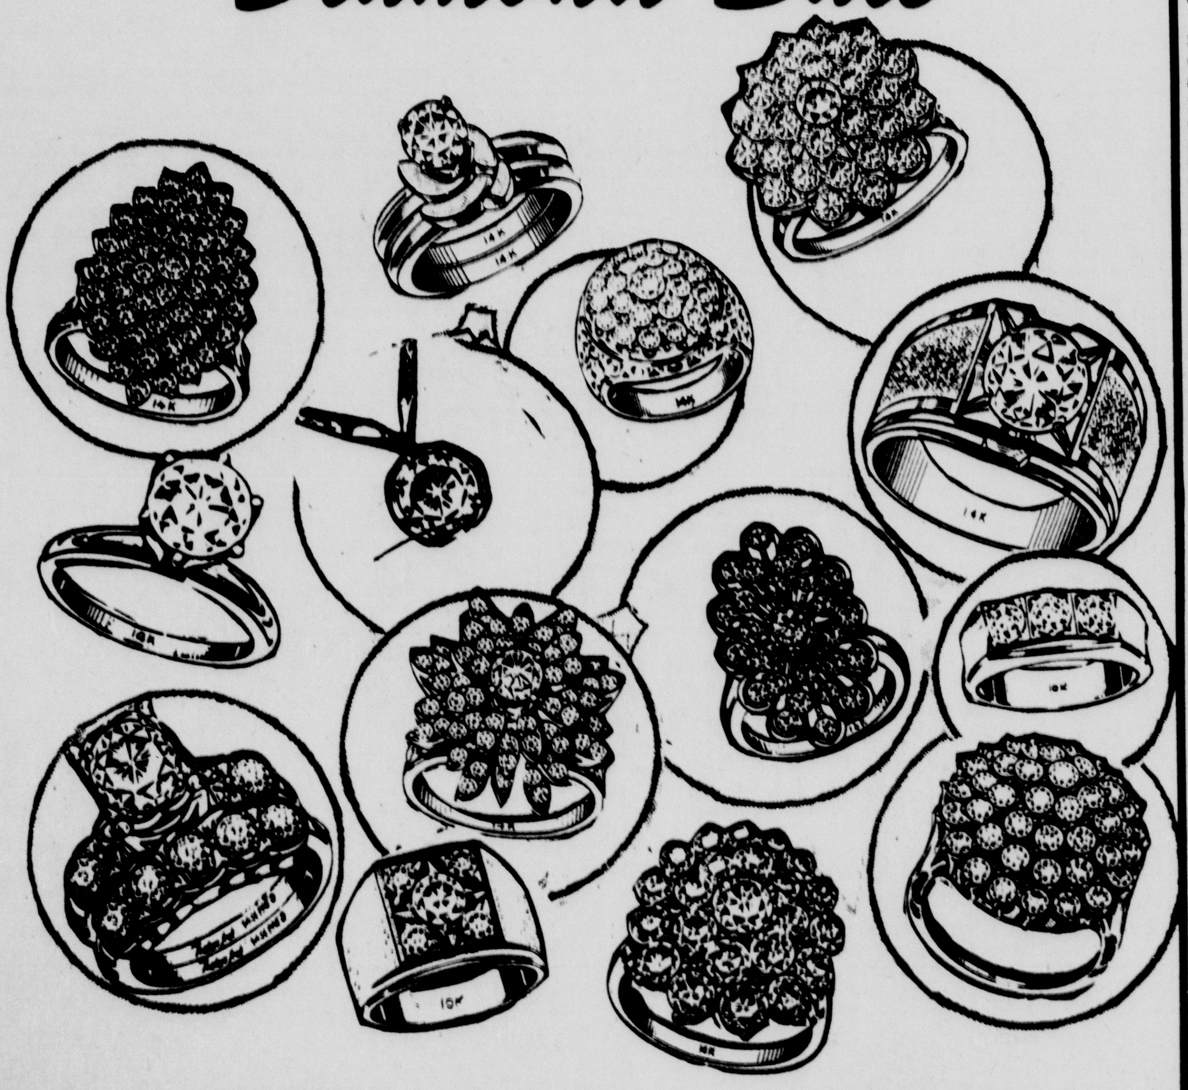

ARMAGH, Northern Ireland (AP) — Women inmates of Armagh jail freed the warden and and three women guards unharmed early today after holding them for 14 hours. The release came after the jail's Roman Catholic and Protestant chaplains had assured the inmates that male prisoners who rioted in other prisons were safe. The prison officers were seized Wednesday as violence swept four Northern Ireland jails and guerrilla bomb explosions and gunfire erupted in Belfast streets.

BONN, West Germany (AP) — West Germany has accused a U.S. business group of trying to meddle in German affairs by opposing a plan giving workers a say in running businesses in Germany, including some American-owned giants. A spokesman for Chancellor Helmut Schmidt told newsmen Wednesday the American Chamber of Commerce in West Gemany was "very close to interfering in our affairs" by distributing a study that criticized the "co-determination" bill presently before parliament.

Smith juggles line-up for Friday's special

Friday night will be a special evening for the mothers of Sikeston high school gridiron athletes and hopefully a special night for the entire team and coach Terry Smith as they battle the Dexter Bearcats at Public School Stadium in search for their first victory of the season.

It has been a long campaign for the Bulldogs and its coaching staff. The team has had more than its share of injuries and problems and faces the dubious destinction of recording the worst record in the school's history.

Coach Smith has made three offensive and five defensive changes for Friday's game in hopes of finding a winning combination. Paul Gilbow has moved into the end spot ahead of Craig Gilbow; Fred Gilliland took over for Mark Hesselrode at guard and Ricky Williams will fill in for the injured Tom DeRoush at tailback. Defensively Don Hankins has stepped into the tackle spot ahead of Jon Ralph; Mark Heeb took over for Rob Newman at nose guard after Newman moved to a linebacker slot to fill in for DeRoush. Mark Hesselrode and Dewey Dumas have also taken over linebacking slots ahead of Ron Priday and Mike Hamra.

The mothers will be honored in 7 p.m. ceremonies and the kickoff will follow around 7:30. After Friday's game the Dogs face three Northern Division powers in Cape Central, Jackson and Poplar Bluff.

Indians 'must' win Saturday

CAPE GIRARDEAU — Perhaps it's too early for those "must" games which come along every season, but that's exactly the way Southeast Missouri State University Coach Jim Lohr views Saturday's 1:30 p.m. Homecoming contest at Houck Stadium here between his Indians and Southwest Missouri State University of Springfield.

The game pits the defending MIAA champion Indians against the pre- season pick to win the 1974 MIAA crown.

The Bears, apparently on the way to their best season since 1966, sport a 4-1 record coming into town. The Indians, on the other hand, are 2-3 and in the hole in the conference, having been edged last week, 21-19, by the University of Missouri -- Rolla.

"Another conference loss and we're out of it," said Lohr.

Until last Saturday UMR had not beaten the Indians in a decade. It's been almost that long since the Bears turned the trick. Their last victory over the Tribe was by a 20-7 margin in 1966.

So far this year the two teams have played one common opponent -- Missouri Southern. The Indians defeated the Joplin club 34-24, while the Bears downed the Lions 41-26.

"We face a real challenge Saturday, and we'll have to play a near perfect football game to have a chance," said Lohr.

The Indian coach hopes the fact that it will be Homecoming on the campus will give the Tribe the extra incentive necessary to spring an upset.

Homecoming definitely has an affect on the mental outlook of a football team, Lohr believes. "The players know there are more of their family, friends, and ex-players in the stands than at other times of the year and they want to make a good showing," he declared.

One of the big reasons for the Bears' success this season is a wide open offensive attack. "They used to run right at you," Lohr said, "but now they make you defend the whole football field."

Junior Kent Stringer of Springfield, who twice this season has been named the MIAA's Offensive Player of the Week, calls the signals for the Bears. He has put the ball in the air 71 times and completed 34 of the attempts for 506 yards.

Stringer's favorite targets are tight end Bob Grana, a St. Louis senior, and slotback Bob Blakley, a St. Joseph sophomore.

Southwest Missouri State's leading rushers are running backs Greg Lawson, a sophomore from Eminence, Ky., and Gino Travline, a sophomore from Gary, Ind. Each is averaging more than five yards per carry. However, the best rushing average on the squad is owned by Blakley, who has gained 179 yards in 21 carries for 8.5 yards per attempt.

The Bears are also strong in the kick-off and punt return departments, according to the latest MIAA statistics.

"We feel we've got to throw the football," said Lohr. The Indians have two quarterbacks who have demonstrated they have the talent, but they have been inconsistent. For that matter, so have the Tribe's running backs and recivers.

Rick Wieser, Topeka, Kan., junior, is the team's top quarterback with 24 completions in 70 attempts for 345 yards and two touchdowns. Senior flanker David Goncher of South Chicago Heights, Ill., is the leading receiver with nine catches for 230 yards and two touchdowns. The top rusher is junior Bobby Everage of Alton, Ill. with 222 yards and two touchdowns on 35 carries.

Mizzou holds the edge

COLUMBIA, Mo. — Oklahoma State's open date last week should have enabled the Cowpokes to polish and improvise their Wishbone attack with new wrinkles for Mizzou's invasion of Lewis Field Saturday.

The Tigers, though, juiced up their offense en route to a 21-10 shocker over fivth- ranked Nebraska at Lincoln -- and OSU's defensive strategists will have to reckon on a new Mizzou backfield format.

Like, for instance, a whip-armed sophomore who'll be starting his first collegiate game. And -- a 225- pound express train at tailback who could be somewhat spectacular in his new habitat.

Steve Pisarkiewicz moves into the No. 1 role at quarterback for Missouri -- while ex-fullback Tony Galbreath supplants freshman Joe Stewart as a bread - and - butter - type tailback in the Power "I".

Scrappy Mark Miller stays at slotback -- his springboard for five touchdowns and 15 pass receptions thus far -- while Ray Bybee leads the Tiger rushers at fullback with a 301-yard haul and 5.4- yard average.

Bybee from East Moline, Ill., now is the only backfield starter who was listed in the pre-season depth charts. The early line had Ray Smith, quarterback; Bill Ziegler, tailback; and Randy Grossart, slotback.

This trio now are on the No. 2 outfit-- Ziegler at slotback, and Grossart at split end.

Pisarkiewicz and Galbreath were the twin propellants in Mizzou's 21- point fourth- quarter eruption against the Cornhuskers. Each scored once. Zark, the Ferguson, Mo. redshirt, hit 5- of- 9 tosses for 42 yards, including a scoring pass. Galbreath of Fulton, Mo., led all ball - carriers with 71 yards in 17 whacks.

Oklahoma State (2-2) gets a revitalizer this week with the return to combat of speedy Leonard Thompson. Out since the Arkansas game with a slight bone fracture in his arm, Thompson is a 9-7 sprinter who gives Coach Jim Stanley's Wishbone good striking power wide.

Thompson's backfield accomplices will be Charlie Weatherbie, quarterback; freshman Skip Taylor, right half; and George Palmer, fullback.

A year ago, Oklahoma State out-rushed the Tigers 229 to 169 out of the same Wishbone here -- and Missouri will be trying to offset that edge this time. The Cowboys have improved their stable of slick- running backs -- but two of them, fullback Robert Turner and freshman Terry Miller - the heralded phenom -- currently are lost with leg fractures.

Mizzou's defense, usually adept at stopping the Wishbone, will be depending on such defensive dandies as Scott Pickens and lynn Evans at the linebacker positions, tackle Mark Johnson and backs Tony Gillick and Ken Downing to show the way.

Evans, with 12 total tackles and four big plays defensively, was Sports Illustrated's Lineman of the Week.

Dodgers 'on the ropes'

OAKLAND (AP) — The embattled Oakland A's have the Los Angeles Dodgers staggering on the ropes and plan to finish off the National League champs tonight with Vida Blue's left-handed punch.

"I'd be disappointed if we don't end it tonight," said third baseman Sal Bando after the A's took a commanding 3-1 lead in the 1974 World Series with a 5-2 victory Wednesday night. "We think very positively."

With Don Sutton on the mound, the Dodgers aren't dead yet — but it may be just a matter of time. Even if they don't win tonight, history is on the A's side. Rarely has a team come back from a 3-1 deficit to win a World Series.

It's only happened three times — 1925, 1958 and 1968.

"We'd like to win tonight, but if we don't, we'll go on down to Los Angeles and finish it," said Bando.

The A's hold the upper hand in this wacky series despite internal unrest, a condition that has been common with this oddball team for some time now.

The latest episode involves Gene Tenace, a sensitive player who was lifted from the lineup by Oakland owner Charles O. Finley prior to Wednesday night's game. Tenace's reaction ranged from humiliation to rage. He branded the A's eccentric owner inhumane.

Tenace, who had played first base for the first three games of this World Series, found out about the lineup change after a team meeting during which Finley gave a pep talk.

"I had to be told by coach Bobby Winkles," said Tenace, still simmering in the clubhouse a few minutes after Wednesday night's significant victory. "Neither Finley nor (Manager Alvin) Dark would tell me. I felt humiliated."

While Tenace burned, Finley kept the rest of the A's smoldering with his pregame meeting. He read some inflammatory remarks from Los Angeles star Bill Buckner that appeared in a local newspaper.

"Buckner said that we have three good ballplayers and that the other 22 are no good," Finley said. "I told them to go out and prove that he's wrong."

The A's did just that — and got excellent performances from some of those people that Buckner had termed inferior to the Dodger talent.

Jim Holt, a pinch-hitter who had been in a terrible batting slump, rifled a two-run single in a four-run sixth inning that broke the game open. Dick Green knocked in a run and made some fabulous defensive plays at second base. And Ken Holtzman and Rollie Fingers, two pitchers that Buckner probably wouldn't mind having on his team, silenced the usually noisy Los Angeles bats.

Holtzman not only dominated the Dodgers most of the time he was in there, but also hit a home run, something the A's have had a tough time doing lately.

Talking about his drive off Andy Messersmith that gave the A's a 1-0 lead in the third inning, Holtzman said: "He got behind me and I was looking for a fastball — and I got it."

The euphoria felt by his home run was quickly dampened by the Dodgers in the next inning. They took a 2-1 lead over Oakland's 19-game winner on a two-run triple by Bill Russell. It quieted the crowd for a while, but they had plenty to shout about in the Oakland sixth.

Bill North led off with a walk and moved to second when Messersmith threw wild past first attempting to pick him off. The A's took advantage of the Dodger mistake, of course. They've been doing it all Series long.

Bando drove in the tying run with a lazy, looping single to right field. Proud of his first hit in this Series, the stocky third baseman announced jokingly: "I hit the hell out of it."

Then Messersmith walked Reggie Jackson and got into more trouble when Joe Rudi sacrificed the runners along. Messersmith then issued an intentional walk to Claudell Washington, who was starting in place of Tenace, and the bases were loaded for the A's.

Holt was announced as the pinch-hitter for Ray Fosse despite a streak of recent frustration. Before the World Series, Holt had gone hitless in 25 appearances as a pinch-hitter. He came through in Saturday's first game, however, and then came through again Wednesday night with a clean base hit to right that gave the A's a 4-2 lead.

Green then grounded into a forceout and Washington came home with the A's fourth run of the inning. It was all over at that point, but the Dodgers didn't know it. They struggled and squirmed while Holtzman held them at bay and then started to make some noises in the eighth inning.

Jimmy Wynn, leader of the Dodgers' long-ball offense this season, walked with two out and Steve Garvey, another of their gold-plated hitters, singled to left with two away. Dark wasted little time in calling in Fingers, whose handlebar moustache is as reknowned as his fine relief pitching.

Fingers struck out the dangerous Joe Ferguson for the last out of the inning, then got through the ninth with the help of a dazzling double play started by the omnipresent Green.

"We can't afford to think negative because we're down three games to one," noted Garvey, refusing to play dead. "You can bet we'll be back tomorrow."

Fruits and vegetables, as they ripen, tend to increase in water content. An apple seed, only 10 per cent water, will produce a ripe apple that is 80 per cent water. A ripe pineapple is 87 per cent water, a tomato is 95 per cent, and a watermelon is 97 per cent water.

On the other hand, a herring is 67 per cent water, a chicken 75 per cent, a frog 78 per cent, a lobster 79 per cent, an earthworm 80 per cent, and man has 70 per cent of his body weight in water.

Water is as vital as the air we breathe, yet we are careless with it. We pollute and waste it. By the time it reaches our homes, it contains every chemical and compound known to man. It is no longer the clean, fresh water that forms in the clouds.

Enjoy the best -- try refined water. It's like drinking from a fresh mountain stream. For a home demonstration call Braswell.

Examiners end training

JEFFERSON CITY — Financial examiners for the Missouri Division of Insurance have completed a six- week computer audit training program, division director Edward G. Garmer Jr. has announced.

The System 2170 computer audit training program consisted of three phases and was designed to update the mechanics of auditing insurance companies doing business in Missouri.

The course included one week of classroom instruction, five weeks of on-the- job training and a review and summarization day with a discussion of the System 2170 concepts and applications.

"Completion of this training program marks the first time we have been in such a position to conduct a truly independent audit of computer- produced records of insurance companies," Farmer said.

"In our computer age it is essential that examiners update their methods and narrow the gap between the data processing expertise of insurance companies, and that of regulatory examiners," he said.

As a result of the training received in the course, the time and cost of examinations should be reduced and examination procedures become more sophisticated.

"Missouri is one of the first states to recognize the need for computer examination specialists and to implement a training program," Farmer said.

"It is understood that other states are looking into similar training programs that will eventually enable insurance departments of each state to be on more equal footing with the multi-billion dollar insurance industry they regulate," he added.

Henderson explains

COE to Kiwanis

Earl Henderson, instructor for the Sikeston High School cooperative occupational education (COE) program, discussed the program at Tuesday night's Kiwanis Club meeting at Ramada Inn.

Henderson explained that the program allows students to work at the trade they would to follow while getting their high school education. He told Kiwanians that the main job field for students is in distribution of goods, which covers many occupations.

The program has 130 students and the most difficult problem facing the school is finding the right jobs for the students, Henderson said. He added that the school trains the students to be on time, show up every day and do what they are told. Participants in the program can acquire 1,000 work hours in two years.

Steve Hughes, a senior in the program, also discussed the program and the Distributive Education Club of America (DECA) chapter at Sikeston High School. The club is a national youth organization composed of working students of the COE program. The clubs have local, district, state and national contests. Tom Schoemehl was a guest at the meeting.

Prayer for today

from the Upper Room

"He who finds his life will lose it, and he who loses his life for my sake will find it." (Matthew 10:39)

PRAYER: Father, make us sensitive to the needs of others around us. Give us the incentive to befriend people and draw them to Your kingdom. Amen.

UNUSUAL FEAT

NEW YORK (AP) — Much has been written about the fragility of records, especially on the racetrack. But a record not likely to be equalled in thoroughbred racing belongs to Rushaway. In 1936 he won the Illinois Derby at Aurora and the next day he took the Latonia Derby at Covington, Ky.

Sons of veterans 'special'

ANNAPOLIS, Md. — Sons of career military officers and enlisted men, deceased or disabled veterans or servicemen missing in action have an "unequaled" opportunity to enter next year's class of 1979 at the Naval Academy.

According to Capt. Ronald A. Campbell, the academy's candidate guidance officer, "opportunity might be knocking at the door for some young men on the basis of their father's military service."

For example, he said the President may grant, on a competitive basis, 100 appointments annually to sons of career officers and enlisted personnel of the armed forces and Coast Guard. The parent must either be on active duty now, retired with pay from the service or have died while retired.

Also, Capt. Campbell said that there may be an additional 65 midshipmen at the Naval Academy at any one time who are sons of armed forces members who have died while on active duty or from service connected injuries, who are 100 per cent disabled or who have been designated as missing in action.

Capt. Campbell urges young men who quality for Presidential appointments to consider the opportunities available at Annapolis.

"First, they have a special path to four years of college, including professional training and education, valued at $55,000," he said.

The program leads to a bachelor's degree which is highly respected in America's engineering and scientific fields. It also leads to a commission as an officer in the Navy or Marine Corps and fine opportunities for graduate level study leading to an advanced degree.

"Second, in addition to providing the finest professional naval education available in the world, the Academy produces responsible leaders who are self- confident and necessarily so," he stated.

"And finally, the Navy means travel all over the world, working with foreign navies and being a personal overseas ambassador for the United States. Being a naval officer is a demanding life, but it is a full and rewarding life for those who will accept the challenge," he added.

Interested young men should write to the Superintendent, U. S. Naval Academy (Attn: Candidate Guidance), Annapolis, Md., 21402 for a catalog, which includes a sample letter of application for a Presidential nomination and additional information on the Naval Academy.

Roy Sanderson

Sanderson gets scholarship

Roy Sanderson, 17, son of Mr. and Mrs. Weldon Sanderson, 709 Mimosa Drive, has been awarded a $120 solo flight scholarship by the Missouri Wing of the Civil Air Patrol.

Cadet Sanderson, a senior at Sikeston High School, is a member of the Sikeston Civil Air Patrol unit. Sanderson's award marked the first time a member of the Sikeston unit has received a flight scholarship.

The scholarship will allow Sanderson to take his solo flight training locally and will pay for most of the training.

Citizens feel helpless against plant

REFORM, Mo. (AP) — "What's the point of worrying. There isn't anything we can do about it."

Mrs. Kenneth Powers stood in the doorway of her singlelevel home, holding her baby and summarizing the feelings of her neighbors in the small hamlet of Reform, tucked away in the rolling hills of central Missouri just north of the Missouri River.

The Union Electric Co., of St. Louis has filed for an application to build a major nuclear power plant here, the first in the state, and the Missouri Public Service Commission will begin public hearings this afternoon on whether to give the utility authority to construct the $1.6 billion project.

"We're not too thrilled about it, though," Mrs. Powers added. "The people we've known all our lives are moving away. My husband was born here. They're not just friends, they're like family."

The Powers' 37-acre tract is about a mile west of the site for the two 1.15 million kilowatt power units that are expected to be in service by 1983. The location is only a 30-minute drive from the state Capitol.

She said they have not been told they'll have to move, but the company has already acquired most of the 6,600 acres of land from about 35 families for construction of the plant if it's approved.

And there appears to be little doubt of that in the minds of the residents of Reform.

"There's not a doubt in my mind that it'll be approved," said Jewel Holland, operator of the general store, as she pointed through the store's front windows at the field to the southwest where the major generating units will stand.

"They wouldn't be spending all the money if they weren't sure they'd get the okay," she said. One of the two giant cooling towers for the operation will stand where store has stood since 1902 when the plant is completed.

But Mrs. Holland said nobody in town opposes construction of the plant and she emphasized that the people from Union Electric "have been real nice" as well as fair to the residents of Reform.

Her general store and its two gasoline pumps out front, located on a sharp bend in County Route DD, is the only commercial building still left in Reform, a town more than a century old that got its name from a group of religious reformers passing through in the 1800s, so the story goes.

The post office, a saloon, a blacksmith's shop and the school have all been gone for years, but the city limit signs along the blacktop road still stand and in the last few years the town has gotten some newcomers, people moving to the country to get away from the city, Mrs. Holland said.

Since the announcement more than a year ago that Reform would be the location of the plant, traffic through the community has increased with both people looking for one of the up to 1,200 construction jobs on the proposed project and company officials, who are "in and out most every week" because of preliminary work.

But now growth in Reform has stopped. Those whose land has been purchased for the plant have to be out by June 1, Mrs. Holland said, and most have already found new places to live, generally in the Callaway County area.

Mrs. Holland said, however, she and her husband have made no decisions on where to go, and neither has W. K. McCall who owns the 160-acre farm just across from the Holland store.

"You have to look at leaving with mixed feelings," McCall said outside his white frame house surrounded by colorfully leaved trees. "I've lived here off and on most of my life."

He expects to relocate in the area, probably in Fulton about 10 miles away, but acknowledge, "We haven't actively been looking, but I guess we're going to have to start pretty soon."

FIRE PREVENTION

GAINESVILLE, Ga. (AP) Firemen in Hall County answered a call to a mobile home — not to extinguish a fire, but to prevent one.

Rose Marie Brown telephoned the Fire Department and said she was at work but couldn't leave.

Firemen went to her mobile home and turned off the stove which she had forgotten.

Triangle Conduit and Cable Co. to locate new plant in Sikeston

Will employ 100 to 120

Triangle Conduit and Cable Co. will open a manufacturing plant next spring in the building formerly occupied by Anchor Toy Corp., 1620 E. Malone Ave.

The announcement was made today at a special City Council meeting in which the council took the first step toward issuing $2 million in industrial and general obligation bonds to finance acquisition of the building and the land.

The manufacturing plant will employ 100 to 120 people when it is in full operation by July. Mayor Frank Ferrell estimated another 100 jobs would be generated for truck drivers needed to haul the manfuactured products.

The Sikeston plant will specialize in wire drawing, stranding, plastic coating and assembly.

Triangle Conduit and Cable Co. is a wholly owned subsidiary of Triangle Industries, Inc. of Holmdel, N.J. The parent company also owns The Plastic Wire and Cable Corp., Rowe International, Inc., and Triangle Pipe and Tube Co., Inc.

Triangle Industries grossed $225 million in 1973 and employed 3,800 people in eight manufacturing locations in the United States and 25 distributor and administrative offices in the United States, Europe and the Far East.

The firm is primarily concerned with the manufacture of electrical wire, cable and steel conduit, copper pipe and fittings and plactic pipe, along with a full line of vending machines, phonographs and coin and dollar bill changers.

Fortune Magazine last year ranked the firm as the 528th largest company in the United States.

Jim Beaird, president of Sikeston Industrial Development Corporation, called Triangle Industries "people of stature and quality in industry" and said the company would have a significant impact on the city.

"They'll be good for us and I see no reason why we won't be good for them," he said.

Plans call for the city to authorize the sale of bonds to pay for the building and the land. The bonds will be repaid from the lease.

Sikeston will not have to put up any funds, although the city's name will be on the bonds. If the company should default, the city would get the building and the fixtures.

Voters will be asked to approve the bonds in a special election probably sometime early in December. To be issued are no more than $750,000 in general obligation bonds and the remainder in industrial revenue bonds.

The plan must be submitted to the state Department of Commerce and Development before an election can be called.

Rod Hitt, vice president of the conduit and cable company told the council that pay scales would run from $2.25 to $4.25 per hour, with 40 per cent of the employes to be female and a payroll that will top $750,000 annually.

The plant will be in full operation by July but will begin operating at a lower capacity in the spring, Hitt said.

When in full operation, the plant will run continuously because the wire extruder cannot be shut down.

The plant will use 20 million pounds of copper, shipped in annually by 2,000 rail cars from the company's rolling mill in New Jersey. The company will also use four to five million pounds of plastic.

The plant will ship out 30 to 35 million pounds of finished product in 8,500 truck loads.

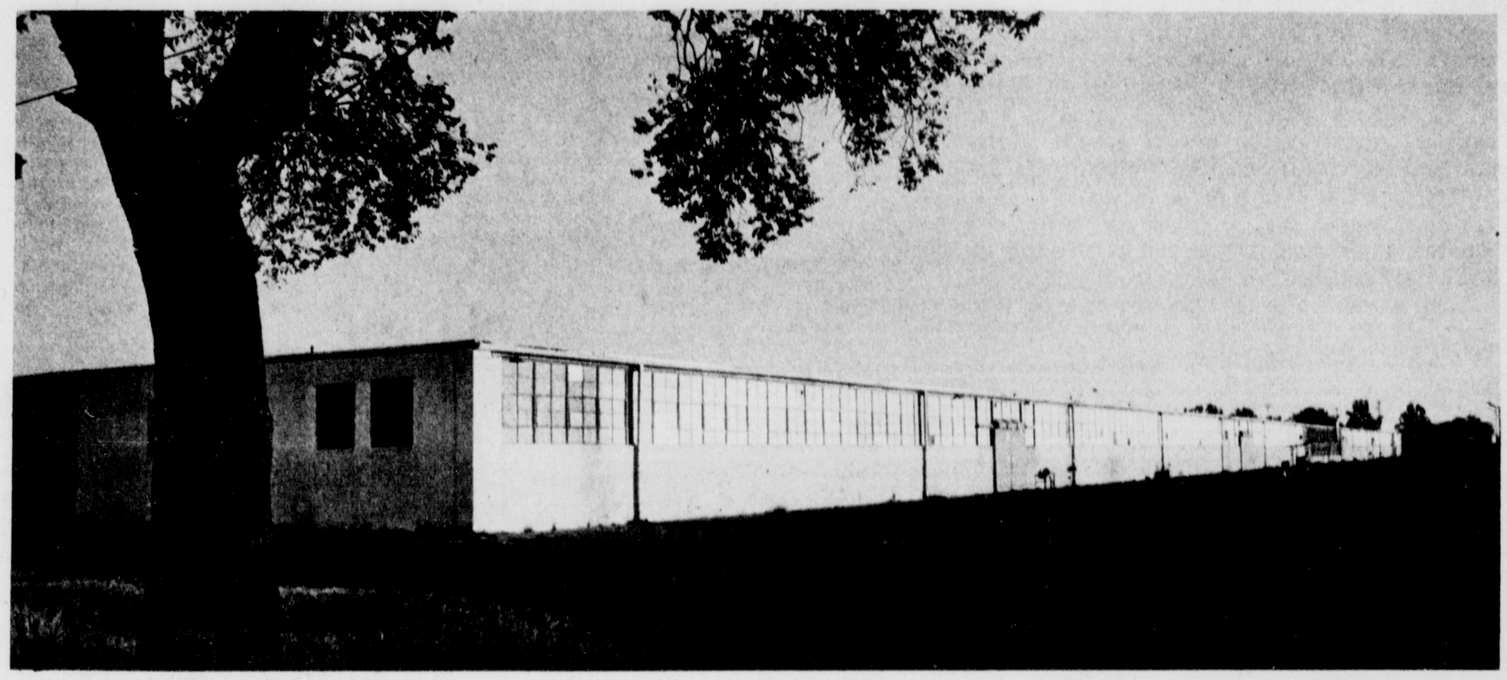

Major users of triangle products are Skil Tool Corp., Sears and Roebuck, Electrolux and Premier Vacuum Cleaner companies.

The finished products will be distributed from Sikeston to a 14-state area.

Bill Wellborn, executive director of the Chamber of Commerce, said the company picked Sikeston because of its central location and because the Anchor Toy building was available for immediate occupancy.

Phil Sarantos, vice president of Triangle Industries, said his firm has been impressed with the people and the civic spirit in Sikeston.

The company will use $250,000 worth of utilities annually.

Announcing Industry

The building formerly occupied by Anchor Toy Corp. (top photo) soon will be bustling again. Triangle Conduit and Cable Co. will open a manufacturing plant in the building next spring. The plant will employ more than 100 people and manufacture wire products. Representatives of the cable and conduit company and its parent firm, Triangle Industries, Inc. of Homdel, N.J., (left photo) met with the Sikeston City Council thir morning. From left are Mayor Frank Ferrell; Rod Hitt, vice president of the conduit and cable firm; Phil Sarantos, vice president of Triangle Industries; Bill Ryan, city councilman; and Richard Hurlbut, assistant to the treasurer of Triangle Industries.

Lewis, LaRue trial set for Dec. 10

BLOOMFIELD — Trial has been set for Dec. 10 in Stoddard County Circuit Court for Melvin Leon Lewis of Sikeston and David LaRue of Gray Ridge, who are charged with three counts of first-degree murder in connection with the death by fire of three Lewis children on Aug. 1, 1973 near Essex.

Circuit Clerk Charles Corbin said today that court officials and law enforcement officers have been instructed by Judge Flake McHaney not to release any additional information regarding the Lewis-LaRue case.

The two men are charged with setting fire to the Lewises' rural home.

Malone & Hyde gets bomb call

A bomb threat was telephoned to employes of Malone & Hyde, Inc., 1500 W. Malone Ave., at 7:55 p.m. Wednesday, police said today.

The unidentified male caller said a bomb would explode at 10 p.m. in the computer room.

Police checked the building and found no bomb.

Employes told police the threat may be related to an upcoming union vote by truckers employed by the firm.

Stereo items stolen here

Eddie Mills, 800 Ruth St., told police Wednesday that someone had taken $1,320 worth of stereo equipment from his home.

Taken were a record player valued at $99, an amplifier worth $559, a reel-to-reel tape player worth $266, an eight track tape player worth $159, tapes worth $59 and two speakers worth $178.

The theft apparently occurred during the day while Mills and his wife were gone.

The Knights of Columbus Hall, 829 Tanner St., was burglarized sometime Tuesday or Wednesday, according to police.

Taken were $3 in change and a case of beer. The burglars apparently entered the building by breaking out a south window.

Extradition ruling may come Friday

JACKSON, Miss. — Gov. Bill Waller says he hopes to decide by Friday whether to extradite Dr. Norman A. Garrison of Corinth to Kennett, Mo. to face a Missouri murder charge.

Waller will make his decision on information received during a seven-hour hearing Oct. 10 conducted by an aide, attorney Jimmy Williams, behind closed doors.

Garrison, 32, is charged with the beating and shooting death of his former wife, Mrs. Lee Ann Garrison, whose body was found in a bedroom of her Kennett, Mo., home on Sept. 8.

Dunklin County officials said they had a Garrison fingerprint in blood found near the scene, but Garrison's defense attorney, John B. Farese, Sr. of Ashland, said he submitted testimony that Garrison was not in Missouri Sept. 8.

Williams said when the governor's decision is reached, it will be announced "as a matter of courtesy" first to the defense attorneys and to the Mississippi Attorney General's office, where Ed Snider, who conducted the case for Missouri, will then notify Dunklin County authorities.

Williams has submitted a report of the proceedings to the governor and has included his recommendations.

Williams' recommendation will be known only to the governor, unless the governor decides to make it public, based on his decision.

Williams, who closed the hearing to the press to guard against any premature disclosure of evidence in the event the case should go to trial, said only of the hearing that "both sides presented good cases." He did not elaborate.

"The point in question" at the hearing, Williams explained, "was extremely narrow," and would be a factual determination of whether the accused was in Missouri when the crime was committed.

If the governor decides to extradite Dr. Garrison, a rendition warrant would be issued by his office and the doctor would be subsequently arrested and returned to Missouri. However, Garrison's attorneys have said that in that event, they would file a writ of habeas corpus in the courts in Mississippi to contest the governor's ruling.

If the governor decides against extradition, there is no other recourse for Missouri authorities in their attempt to return the doctor here to stand trial on the murder charge, however, the state of Missouri could wait until a later date and request again for extradition. In Missouri, there is no statute of limitations on first degree murder charges.

The Garrisons were married in 1963 while attending the University of Mississippi. After he finished medical school he became a partner in a Kennett hospital established by her grandfather. He returned to his native Corinth after they were divorced in June.

Sikes supplements report

JEFFERSON CITY, Mo. (AP) — State consumer affairs director Alfred Sikes said today he has submitted a supplementary report to Gov. Christopher S. Bond on his recommendations for modification of the state's 8 per cent usury law.

He said the new report outlines the other alternatives considered to his final proposal for taking the lid off regulation of interest rates on home loans, corporate loans and commercial loans over $5,000 and raising the ceiling to 10 per cent on other loans.

A plan to place a 10 per cent ceiling on all loans except corporate loans was rejected, he said, because it could eventually place the state in the same situation concerning home loans it now finds itself should interest rates continue to rise.

A floating ceiling based on either the federal discount rate or the prime interest rate was also rejected because the public does not fully understand either of the rates and such a floating ceiling could cause confusion.

Burlison predicts passage of health insurance bill

Discussing what he termed "America's Health Care Crisis," U. S. Rep. Bill D. Burlison said, "Today, Americans spend three times more in a year for health care than they did just a decade ago - $441 versus $145 per capita."

The Cape Girardeau Democrat spoke today at Ramada Inn at a special health care seminar for employers sponsored by Delmo Family Services, Inc. To combat such a spiral, a national health insurance law is inevitable, he said.

The Congressman briefly summarized the major provisions of the most significant health reform bills receiving Congressional scrutiny. The most comprehensive measure, the Corman-Griffiths bill offers virtual "cradle-to-grave" health benefits financed through increased payroll taxes and general U. S. tax revenues and administered through the social security system.

Bill Burlison

The Republican administration has offered a more limited program that would be voluntary in nature and handled through the private insurance companies. Sen. Edward Kennedy of Massachusetts and Rep. Wilbur Mills of Arkansas have offered a compromise bill that would include some of the Administration provisions with respect to deductibles and co-insurance.

Burlison said legislation will probably not be finally enacted in the present Congress but is likely next year.

OIL PRICE: MOMENT OF TRUTH

Secretary of State Kissinger did not overstate the case when he warned the oil producing states at the U.N. that the world must have relief from the high price of their oil.

Day by day it becomes more obvious that high energy costs are an uncontrollable element in any program to stop inflation. The effects of the sharp rise in the price of petroleum in the past year are now beginning to ripple out into all apsects of the U. S. economy which are dependent on petroleum products. And economists throw up their hands in despair as evidence mounts that the Western economic system simply cannot stand a continuance of these oil price levels and the general inflation resulting from them.

The recent meeting of the Organization of Petroleum Exporting Countries (OPEC) in Vienna did nothing to relieve the situation. Not only was the posted price of Arab oil not reduced, but the "buy back" price has been raised. This is the price at which the oil companies "buy back" from the Arab governments the oil production which the governments themselves now own (60% in the case of Saudi Arabia, but soon to reach 100%). Customarily, the price has been somewhat less than the posted price. The two-tier oil system is thus about to be wiped out, resulting in a further overall oil price rise.

Saudi Arabia's Sheikh Yamani candidly concedes that he expects a "major world recession" due in part to expensive oil. He talks as though his government would like to lower the price but can do nothing because other OPEC nations will not agree.

This situation is intolerable. Have consumer nations no choice except to do nothing while economic disaster overtakes them as a result of the stranglehold which the oil cartel now exerts on the world? Are there no forms of effective retaliation open to us to force an oil price reduction if common sense does not prevail?

There are rumors of counterpressures about to be brought. We hope they are true and that Kissinger's remarks were not mere words. If there ever was a vital national interest at stake, it is now. The well- being of the American and other peoples is directly involved. We do not presume to tell our government how to act, but we do say that act it must.

THE PRESIDENT LACKED HIS APLOMB

President Gerald Ford was not the suave gentleman last week at his press conference that he had been previously. There was a lack of something in his demeanor.

He had to admit to his questioning newsmen that repercussion over his pardon of Mr. Nixon had been greater than he had anticipated. Yet, in spite of it all, he denied that ther was any deal between him and Mr. Nixon.

We have no knowledge of any agreement between the two men, but it does seem a mite strange that Gerald Ford as Vice- President ran all over the United States proclaiming that Mr. Nixon was innocent of any wrongdoing. Then the first thing we knew, he was on the critical side of Mr. Nixon. Then came the pardon.

The United States and the world may never know all of the facts and the true facts about Richard Nixon's latest experiences in the White House. His experiences of years ago are history. All of us remember his attacks on a fine woman, Helen Gahagan Douglas. He damaged her character, but he did that for others, so she was no exception.

We sometimes wonder just what Mr. Nixon's thoughts are as he walks along the beach near his San Clemente home. If he has turned on his radio or his television he has not had any joyous news about himself in recent weeks. That may hold true for many weeks to come.

President Ford got himself into the mess he is in now. He has done it on two measures, one Mr. Nixon's pardon and the other amnesty for the boys up in Canada. Neither helped his cause as President. We have not changed our mind in the least. At one time we thought Mr. Ford such a clean- cut, honest individual that he was a natural- born leader. All of that has disappeared.

President Ford will be watched by the newsmen in Washington. He will be "collared" whenever he makes a misstep. And we believe that is all for the good. If men in high places have to be watched, then they have to be watched.

STATE SALARIES SOAR IN REORGANIZATION

The reorganization of Missouri government this year has resulted in unexpected large salary increases for many middle- and upper- level state officials, according to a report issued yesterday by the staff of the House Appripriations Committee.

A partial survey of the payroll of Gov. Christopher S. Bond's administration noted that at least 70 persons in such jobs had received pay hikes of 10 per cent or more, the report said.

Some of them, the report continued, are earnin 40 or 50 per cent more than they did before the reorganization plan went into effect July 1.

In making the hefty raises, the committee staff said, the executive branch may have violated the intent of the general assembly when it forumulated the state's general operating budget for 1974-75.

Although the budget legislation allows agency directors to determine their employees' salaries, the report contended, the amount of money allocated to each did not allow for more than a 5 or 6 per cent pay hike for any one worker.

State Rep. James (Jay) Russell (D-St. Louis County), committee chairman, said he believed the report showed that the Bond administration had taken advantage of reorganization changes to create special pay boosts for political reasons.

"This is patronage, which they (Bond and his staff) said they wouldn't practice," Russell said. "The lower- level people, the clerks, the secretaries, got the 5 per cent increases and no more. But look at all those upper- level employees."

Bond administration officials quickly labeled the report inaccurate, incomplete and politically motivated.

Robert James, director of the state office of administration, called the survey "a purely political document" riddled with factual errors and inconsistencies.

He said the report cities increases in pay for certain officials without noting that their jobs had changed.

When the Bond administration's budget request was submitted to the general assembly last year, James said, Russell and other House and Senate leaders were advised that some administrative officials would be receiving salary increases of more than 5 per cent.

He said it was obvious to everyone involved that the reorganization plan — which involved a wholesale reshuffling of almost every function of state government — would mean many changes in job classifications of employees. With the changes, he said, might come salary adjustments.

Some of those receiving extra raises, he said, were some of those who earn more than 5 or 6 per cent more money this year had been promoted to new jobs with additional duties.

Others, he said, are receiving sizable increases because their pay had been raised to compare more favorably with salaries received by persons in similar positions in the business world.

And yet others, he said, had realized large pay increases because their departments' salary scales traditionally had been lower than those of other state agencies.

For example, he said officials of the state agriculture department traditionally had been lower than those of other state agencies.

For example, he said, officials of the state agriculture department traditionally had received "ridiculously low wages" compared to persons with similar responsibilities in other departments.

That is why, he said, the directors of the eight divisions in the department are receiving pay hikes of 29 to 50 per cent.

James said the administration is not overspending its personnel budget. He said it has every right to decide how it wants to use the money that has been allocated for the purpose.

He said Russell's contention that few employees in lower-paying positions had received the special raises linked to reorganization was "utterly false."

"I could go through the files and cite any number of file clerks and secretaries whose salaries also were increased in that way," James said.

However, he admitted that proportionally fewer employees in low- level positions had received the high raises than those in higher - placed jobs.

Besides the steep pay hikes in the agriculture department, the report noted salary increases in excess of 20 per cent for certain officials of the department of natural resources, the office of administration and the department of consumer affairs, regulation and licensing.

Most persons in middle-management capacities in state agencies now earn at least $15,000 a year, the report indicates.

The salaries of the directors of all but one state department are set by statute at $30,000 a year.

Russell said the report was drawn up mainly "to show what went wrong" as a result of the Senate's refusal to go along with his plan for a line-item budget.

For many years the legislature has covered salaries by assigning a sum under the heading "personnel services" for each department.

In the last legislative session Russell attempted to institute a procedure by which the General Assembly would assign salaries for each employee of state government in the budget.

THERE SHOULD BE A LAW

In these days of increasing foreign travel, it is wise to know a bit about the laws of the lands you visit. The standards for keeping out of trouble vary around the world.

Take Sunday, for example. In England it is illegal to beat your wife on Sunday or play billiards. And in Yorkshire it is illegal not to have Yorkshire pudding with roast beef on Sunday. Sunday newspapers are prohibited in Ireland and Australia, and in Teruel, Spain, no one may take a heated bath on Sunday. Some English towns say that there shall be no whistling on Sundays after 9 p.m., that churchgoing shall be on foot, that there shall be no cigarette smoking on the street and no telling fortunes with tea leaves.

A pig has the right to travel on railroads in England providing it has a ticket and is accompanied by a person. But it is illegal for people to share a taxi, or eavedrop in restaurants or on buses.

Bermuda says there shall be no bicycle riding while under the influence of alcohol, and public profanity is prohibited. Brazil says you may not appear on the streets without wearing a coat, or carry a suitcase on a first- class trolley car. In Para, Brazil, there shall be no singing in the streets. Sao Paulo provides that any prisoner arriving at the jail after 10 p.m. will not be admitted until the next morning.

The men in Bogata, Colombia, apparently don't trust their policemen. These are prohibited from speaking to women, especially female servants, while on duty. In Italy policemen are expected to prevent kissing on the streets, or holding hands in a park -- and a wife may not rest her head on her husband's shoulder while traveling. When in Italy you may kiss in public only in railroad stations.

In the Philippine Islands drawing or sculpturing a nude figure is punishable, as is the bicycle riding of a man with a woman. But when you are in Japan, you are considered within your legal rights should you wish to undress in public.

And for weapons -- Bombay, India, prohibts carrying a penknife or steel pen within the city limits. In Spain you cannot hit a man with an egg, a bottle, or a cucumber. And don't splash water on a policeman in Guatemala, or you will surely spend some time in the pokey. Ambitious young ladies wishing to work in Australia should remember that no woman under the age of forty-five may work as a chorus girl there.

As you may note, we didn't discuss some of the strange laws in the various states of the United States -- but that is another field of research if we can get around to it.

A NEW COMMUNIST THREAT

Intelligence sources in Washington have reported that the Russians have successfully test- fired missiles from submarines at ranges up to 4,900 miles. The U.S., these sources say, has no submarine missiles with anything comparable to that range. This alarming news means that Soviet submarines can hide off the coast of Norway and strike any city in the U. S. with nuclear weapons. Submarines used as launching pads have a great advantage over land-based missile launchers. They can strike and then run and hide against retaliation.

Our naval margin over the Soviets has long since disappeared. The U. S. still has powerful aircraft carriers but they may prove highly vulnerable in a nuclear war. Meanwhile, the Russians are adding to their surface fleet of missile- firing cruisers and destroyers. The presence of these surface ships in the Mediterranean Sea and Indian Ocean already have had a profound influence on diplomatic relations of the great nations.

All of this points out the need for great emphasis on national defense of the U. S. Our naval defenses, along with land and air, must be strengthened. Whatever our domestic economic woes might be, the national survival issue remains paramount. The rebuilding of the merchant marine is of parallel importance. Sea communications have to be maintained and protected by a strong fleet. All citizens of this Republic should urge a great national effort in holding the line against future communist aggression. If we don't, there will be no need to worry about the economy or anything else. Our independence must be protected. HLH

Socialist World Threat: British Labor Government Set To Create Unique "Union -State'

NEW YORK --Suave and cultured British Prime Minister Harold Wilson --who is second only to Dick Nixon in his distaste for the press --has been scoring the disquieting success of the fiddle salesman in Nero's palace. As a result, it's quite likely the United Kingdom will go the way of Nero's Rome while the world fiddles.

It's not understood in the United States --but the British Labor party's parliamentary vicotory last week is a victory for a very viable internaitonal socialist movement. Should the government of the urbane Mr. Wilson last four to five years, the Socialist and Communist Internationals will be competing with each other for the honor of destroying world capitalism. This may well be accomplished by a series of 'Union -States" drawing political and philosophical-- perhaps financial --strength from Britian's newest laborite government.

The impact of such phenomena on American multinational corporations and jobs will be awesome. In effect, though gentler and in more civilized fashion, it all will result in the governmental control of world industries, just as though they were seized by scored of Allendes.

It's not necessary to growl or impugn the personal characters of the fantastically cultured British Laborite government leaders. They are socialitists. They attend Socialist International Bureau party meetings. They plan to "socialist -ize" the free world. And just a few hours after Harold Wilson was assured reelection, he said frankly he has no intention of "watering down" the Labor party's socialist programs.

Just what this means needs no other explanation than the words of the quiet -spoken , bookish Len Murray, leader of the British labor movement known as the Trades Union Congress (TUC). Murray's philosophy is revolution by evolution.

This means the state, which now for all intents actually is the TUC, slowly will take over all production in Britian. This will include the automobile industry, for example. Therefore, I believe American companies such as Ford, General Motors and the Chrysler combine U.K. installatins will be nationalized.

There is no mystery, no secrecy, in the TUC plans for a union -state. It's all on paper. People just don't read.

In London recently, I examined a sheaf of papers containing the nationalization plans of both the TUC and the Labor Party which it controls through their joint "Liaison Committee." "The TUC is seeking to extend the rights of workeres by developing collective bargaining and by establishing new forms of joint control over major policy decisions in industry," said one recently issued document

"The TUC will want to see a rapid growth of democracy in industry by a new Companies Act.. As for the private sector the TUC wishes each large company to have a supervisory board and a management board. It would be able to overrule the board of management, the annual meeting of shareholders or the owners on all major decisions, such as technological changes, mergers, takeovers, or investment plans. The TUC plan is for half the members of supervisory boards to be workers' representatives appointed through their unions."

Note, please, the word "each" and the power given to labor's leaders in "each" company. Whether Mr. Wilson, with a narrow -parliamentary margin, will attempt to push through this side -door nationalizaiton by turning corporate control over to the unions, it's too early to predict.

But it appears certain the left -wingers, the shop stewards on the shop floor, will have a bloody good time whipping up the rank and file. There's already constant malaise where the production is. Just a few weeks ago the British -based Ford Motor Company saw several hundred of its key workers strike over such items as wash - up time. Supplies ran short. (The same tactics have broken out in the U.S..) Tens of thousands of British Ford workers had to be laid off. Result: the loss of car and truck production worth some $95 million retail.

This same strike -happiness has hit the big Canadian -owned Massey -Ferguson, Ltd., British establishment to such a damaging extent that it will soon be producing its diesel engines in the Federal Republic of Germany.

Ford is building a plant in Spain. This has given British labor leaders the jitters. And this will be a special part of the agenda when the Ford World Auto Council division of the International Metalworkers' Federation meets in London Nov. 4 and 5 at the New Ambassadors Hotel. Planning to attend is Ken Bannon, United States Workers vice president in charge of the Detroit union's Ford section.

They should be worried. Why should big American corporations wait quietly for a rendezvous with a socialist takeover? Why should major American corporations, in which hundreds of thousands of American middle class and even working "class" folk hold stock, wait to be nationalized? And what of the pension fund holdings?

But this is the era of the old socialists' last hurray. Many of them such as Secretary of State for Employment Mike Foot, a brilliant chap disdainful of the intellect of non -socialists, have fought all their lives for this moment of socialist glory. They're not about to let the years pass. I believe they're playing with economic fire while the rest of the free world fiddles.

SHOULD ROCKEFELLER PAY NIXON?

By Art Buchwald

WASHINGTON-- The two major political problems in this country this week are that Nelson Rockefeller seems to have too much money and Richard Nixon doesn't seem to have enough.

Last Friday the headlines said Rocky was throwing around money like a drunken congressman, while the Justice Department had made a deal to defend Richard Nixon's Watergate civil suits at no cost to him.

This angered many people in the country, including Selwyn Mimser who called in a rage. "Why should I as a taxpayer have to foot Nixon's legal fees?"

"Because," I said, "that's the way they do it over at Justice. They feel they owe Nixon something."

"Why doesn't Rocky give him the money?" Mimser wanted to know.

"Why should Rockefeller give him any money?" I asked.

"Because if Nixon hadn't resigned, Rockefeller wouldn't be the vice- presidential

"That's true, but Rockefeller can't just give money to (ital) everybody (unital). After all, there's even a limit to his fortune," I said.

"How do you know that?"

He had me there. "I'm just guessing there's a limit. There is, isn't there?"

"Why are you asking me?" Selwyn wanted to know. "Anyway I think we should make Rocky promise to take care of Nixon for the rest of his life."

"That's not cheap," I warned Selwyn. "Nixon likes a lot of perks, such as servants, chauffeurs, secretaries, ghostwriters, not to mention a press secretary and a large office staff."

"Rocky can handle it," Selwyn assured me. "At least, he can afford it more than we can."

"But," I said, "there could be a conflict of interest. Suppose Nixon ran for public office again? If he had accepted a gift of money he'd be under obligation to Rockefeller."

"If you read Rockefeller's statements he has never given anybody money except as a gesture of appreciation and friendship. Not once has he taken advantage of the gifts."

"You know that," I said, "and I know that. But does Nixon know it? I think you have a good idea, but it won't fly. We, the public, should give Nixon anything he asks for and not leave it up to the Rockefellers of this world.

"While I'm the first to agree that this country should economize, I don't believe it should be at the expense of an ex- President who was forced to resign because he was up to his ears in the obstruction of justice for which he has been given a full and unqualified pardon."

"Well it was just an idea," Selwyn said. "You don't have to get sore at me."

"I'm sorry. I lost my cool," I said. "But you have to admit, we've reached a sorry point in this country when we question a man who gives one or two million dollars away to people he has a deep affection for."

"I wasn't questioning that," Mimser protested. "All I was suggesting was a way to take care of Nixon's legal and household bills without sticking the taxpayer. Gerry Ford did ask us to think of ways of saving money."

"He also said it was time we forgave Rockefeller," I said, "because he's suffered enough."

JACK ANDERSON SAYS: The Vulnerable Airports

WASHINGTON --New secret documents tell of 18 busy world airports which are open to Arab terrorsist attack because of lax security of their location in guerrilla -infested areas.

The new survey by the Federal Aviation Administration supercedes one this summer turned up by Rep. John Murphy, D -N.Y., a House air safety expert. When we printed the names of the eight "most vulnerable" airports then, we were criticized for breaking the seal of secrecy on calssified FAA documents.

But we reasoned that travelers had a right to that information, and now the new survey seems to bear us out. The current FAA study shows that London, which we listed as a security horror story, is now much improved. New Delhi and Bangkik have been dropped from the earlier list.

In any case, according to U.S. intelligence reports, the Fedayeen already know which airports are easy marks.

The new study, classified "For Official Use Only," names the 18 "High Risk Foreigh Airports" as Rome, Frankfurt, Amsterdam, Geneva, Zuirch, Madrid, Beirut, Athens, Tel Aviv, Paris, Munich, London, Istanbul, Vienna, Brussels, Barcelona, Copenhagen and Lisbon.

Terrorists have struck most frequently, the documents, say, at Munich where 11 incidents have occurrred. The FAA probers cite West Germany's "close Israeli ties" as one reason for the attacks. Second, with five episodes, is Rome. Athens and Beirut have had four each and Frankfurt and Amsterdam have had three.

Beirut and Tel Aviv are priased by the FAA for doing their best, but they are classified "High Risk" because of their location in the volatile Middle East. London has improved mightily, but is still listed because of the large number of flights, particularly departures bound for the United States.

Zurich and Geneva are branded as risks for an intriguing reason. Arab terrorists, according to the FAA's intelligence, are angry over Switzerland's willingness to allow a Geneva peace conference on the Middle East.

"Attacks at this time would be aimed at disrupting peace conference and as punishment of Swiss for allowing the cnference," the FAA study says.

FOOTNOTE: Murphy pushed through a law permitting an embargo on flights between the United States and countries with risk - prone airports. In private correspondence Murphy has been urging the Department of Transportation to begin enforcing the law.

BIRCH BARK: President Ford warmly embraced C.R. Lewis, a prominent John Birch Society member, when he came to Washington recently.

Lewis is running for the Senate in Alaska on the Republican ticket, so Ford posed with Lewis for the traditional hand -shaking scene for campaign use. The President even threw in and extra picture of them strolling together and a "Dear C.R." letter telling Lewis: "I am looking forward to working with you in the Senate."

The John Birch Society showed its appreciation later by ripping Ford apart in its "The Review of the News," which featured a full -page ad for Lewis' contracting firm.

"One cannot escape the feeling," declared the Bircher publication, "that Gerald Ford is under a discipline and serving a radical cause..

"When the scripts calls for declaring that American youth should prepare to emulate the example of young slaves in the concentration camp that is Red China Gerald Ford follows the script."

In sum, said the article, the President is a "hustler for Chariman Mao."

FOOTNOTE: The White House declined comment on the endorsement of the John Birch candidate. But at the GOP campaign committee, a spokesman told us the candiate's philopsphy weighs far less than "whether he can win."

WATCH ON WASTE: The Air Force shipped 350 personnel officers across the nation to San Antonio for conference on management efficiency. The object was to save money for the taxpayers. Sources familiar with such conferences suggest, on the contrary, that it cost the taxpayers more than will be saved.

Just the per diem bills turned in by the 350 conferees added up to $52,000 . An Air Force spokesman told us: "There is now way to figure travel costs."

WASHINGTON WHIRL: In a stern memo to his staff, Interior Secretary Rogers Morton told them their junketing has reached "unreasonable proportions" and must be cut back. Morton's own recent junkets include trips to Maine, the Gulf Coast, Mississippi and Alabama.. A White House aide, who defied the demands of the Watergate crew, is returning to government as the Interior Dept.'s communications chief. He is Bill Rhatican, who single -handedly stopped the Nixon campaign from politicizing the White House anti -drug program.. We reported recently that Army recruiters had been signing up misfits and even criminals in their eagerness to reach recruiting goals. Army Secretary Howard Callaway has now written us pledging: "We are making a sincere attempt to eliminate all irregularities -from Army recruiting. I hope the unfortunate practices used in the past by a few Army recruiters will not detract from the overall outstanding success of our recruiting efforts" ...The Marine Corps recruiting slogan, "The Marines Are Looking for a Few Good Men," has irritated a lot of women. A group calling themselves the Federally Employed Women has accused the leathernecks of discriminating against women in their recruitment program.

Ann Landers

Counseling may be needed

Dear Ann Landers: My sister was widowed at the age of 32. Her husband left her with two sons. One suffered a brain injury at birth and had to be hospitalized when he was five. The other boy is slightly retarded, but the doctors say he can stay in regular schools for a while at least. That boy is now nine years of age.

Last month we learned that my sister has terminal cancer. There is no one else who can take the older boy and I feel it is my responsibility to raise him. I have already told my sister that I would, so it's settled.

My husband is a wonderful person but he is concerned about the problems that face us. First, our own son and daughter (10 and 13) do not get along very well with one another, and they both resent the presence of their nine-year-old cousin. (He is staying with us while his mother is in the hospital for treatment.) I try to get them to be patient with the lad but they are really mean to him.

Last night the girl was teasing the boy because he wets the bed. He went into the clothes closet and I heard him sobbing.

Please, Ann, tell me how I can equip myself for the job ahead. I need help.--Worried ABout the Future

Dear Friend: First: Contact your local mental health facilities about family counseling. I believe you could all profit from it.

Next: Send for a subscription to the "The Exceptional Parent," P.O. Box 964, Manchester, N.H. 03105. This magazine is for parents of handicapped children. It deals with family-life issues, sibling relationships, sex education, and has a wealth of information on how to cope with problems of children who are emotionally disturbed as well as physically handicapped. I recommend it highly.

Dear Annn Landers: My brother's son is to be married soon. The girl's parents, at her insistence, are giving her a big wedding, complete with white gown, veil, reception, etc.

The joker is that the couple hab been living together for four years. I refuse to attend the wedding and am being severely criticized. Several relatives have reminded me that it is everyone's right to choose his own lifestyle. I agree, but I also maintain that it is MY right to refuse to honor or reward a lifestyle which I consider immoral by contributing my presence or my presents.

I am pleased the couple has decided to marry, but I believe it should be done in a quiet ceremony. Ath the very least, the girl should have the decency not to wear a white bridal gown.

This is becoming a family crisis. Your opinion, please.--C.M.

Dear C.M.: You were invited to be a guest, not to sit in judgment on the couple's lifestyle. In that same context, what the bride chooses the wear is up to her.

If you refuse to attend this wedding you will cast a small cloud over the day for your brother and his family. That cloud will hang over your head for a long time to come. If you take my advice you'll go.

Confidential to Should We or Shouldn't we? Do as you please, but I offer you Florida Governor Reubin Askew's priceless remark: "We don't serve alcoholic beverages in the mansion and it's amazing how early people go home when you don't serve them liquor."

Even if drinking is the "in" thing in your crowd, it needn't crowd you out. Learn the facts from Ann Landers's booklet, "Booze and You--For Teen-Agers Only." Send 35 cents in coin and a long, self-addressed, stamped envelope to Ann Landers, P.O. Box 1400, Elgin, Ill. 60120.

A Labor Department report punctures the belief that single working women are weaker and less reliable than men. "Women workers," the report says "have favorable records of attendance and labor turnover when compared with men employed at similar job levels." The report found that single women stayed out sick for shorterperiods, went home mainly with "acute illness" and changed jobs less often than males.

Family budget increase predicted for year 2000

CHICAGO (AP) — Salaries up by 177 per cent — sound impossible?

No, not if you look into the crystal ball at the year 2000.

"And that is good news for the family budget custodian," says a recent report. Offering a glimpse of how 21st-century families will be living, the report from the financial services arm of Esmark predicts that income for a husband and wife with two school age children will average $38,041 — compared to today's $13,721.

Homemakers will delight in the fact that food costs will be down.

"Approximately 23.6 per cent of gross income will be spent on filling the family larder, as opposed to 25.3 per cent today. Modern, automated food processing technologies will help bring food prices down.

"Shelter will go up slightly compared to 1974. Americans today spend roughly 24.5 per cent of their income for housing — 25 per cent will be spent in 2000."

The forecast is for more of the family dollar going into savings, insurance and investments 25 years hence — 8 per cent. The probability of longer life for the average American will automatically trigger the need for meaningful retirement programs.

R and R — rest and recreation — will figure prominently in the 21st-century budget.

"With more leisure time and shorter work weeks families will earmark a larger share of the familial pocketbook — 5 per cent — to recreational activities.

"The family of 2000 will also have very definitive attitudes on where they live," the report emphasizes.

"Planned communities — now in their infancy — will be the futuristic life style. These new towns will feature one-stop living, work and play areas.

"Taxes will probably take a bigger bite from the income — simply because of an over-all increase. But, by and large, things look good for the budget of year 2000."

More money, better health, easier life and more recreation in the year 2000?

"Emphatically yes," the report concludes.

Women can save 50 per cent by sewing

Almost everything costs more today -- gas, food, appliances. All of us are trying to find ways to save a little here and there. The cost of clothing has also risen in the past few years, and this is an area where the woman who sews can often save 50 per cent or more by making her clothing.

In a recent survey conducted by The Wool Bureau, Inc., 74 per cent of women who sew said the reason was that it's less expensive than purchasing ready made garments. Other reasons for sewing were individualism and creativity (being able to choose fabric, style and color themselves), better fit and better quality.

There's a myriad of pattern styles and fabrics to choose from. Since about half the savings in making a garment at home is the labor, a woman can afford to use the quality fabrics she often cannot afford in ready - to wear.

Remember, the garments you make yourself are extra special because you put a part of yourself into each of them. Sew with the best quality fabrics to make the best quality garments.

Enrollment of women in engineering soars

COLUMBIA-- From 1856 until the present, about 8,500 men have earned bachelor of science degrees in engineering at University of Missouri- Columbia. More than half a century went by, however, before the first engineering degree was awarded to a woman by UMC.

In the 60 years or so that followed, a total of only 16 women have graduated from the Columbia campus with B.S. degrees in this traditionally male discipline.

But look what's happening now!

From an all- time enrollment high several years ago of 16 women in UMC's College of Engineering, this figure jumped to 41 in 1973 and to 75 this semester.

Why this dramatic increase?

A combination of reasons, according to Dr. Jack W. Morgan, assistant dean and placement director of UMC engineering.

"Women have always had the ability to become engineers," he said. "Elementary and secondary school girls have historically earned better grades than boys in both math and science. And these are the basis of an engineering education.

"However, it took the women's liberation movement, plus pressures from equal- opportunity advocates, to convince employers that women can fill their technical vacancies just as capably as men. It has been largely during the past five years that the barrier of stereotyped occupations for women has been lifted noticeably."

Women engineers are eagerly sought by company interviewers recruiting on the nation's campuses. It's also a matter of record that new B. S. degree women engineers are getting a slightly higher average starting salary than their male classmates.

Right now, that's better than $12,000 a year. . .and climbing.

"But the money isn't an overriding factor," said Dean Morgan. "Many of the new areas of engineering, especially those concerned with the environment, health- care services, bioengineering, water and air pollution control, energy, etc., offer many young women greater personal satisfaction than some of their more traditional career choices."

He predicts that the number of women students in UMC's College of Engineering will continue to increase.

"Because," he said, "of the 1,250,000 engineers in the U. S. today, only about two per cent are women. The field is wide open.'

R-1 school district has 4,843 enrolled

HOWARDVILLE — New Madrid County R-1 Enlarged School District has enrolled 4,843 students, an increase of 57 students over the 4,786 enrolled at the end of the first month of school last year.

Enrollment for each unit includes: Lilbourn, 1,186; Matthews, 722; New Madrid, 1,022; Parma, 545; and Portageville, 1,368.

At the end of the first month of school, the best attendance in the district was for students in the New Madrid unit, with 96.9 per cent attendance. The average for the district was 96.1 per cent.

The best percentage of attendance for teachers was earned by the teachers at the vocational - technical skills center.

The district employs 319 teachers and administrators and 263 non-certified personnel.

The Title I program this year has been expanded to include a full- day kindergarten program for selected students. It has been necessary to add mobile housing units at Lilbourn, New Madrid, Parma and Portageville to house these extended programs. The mobile units are furnished through Title I funds and are air-conditioned and equipped with tie-downs.

They are being used by approximately 180 kindergarten students and various other elementary children in Title I remedial activities.

The vocational - technical skills center has enrolled over 450 juniors and seniors from across the district in the 16 different course areas, plus approximately 100 juniors and seniors attending advanced math, advanced science and language arts courses at the vocational center.

About 515 of the 600 juniors and seniors in the district have classes at the vocational center for half a day or more.

Over 200 adults are enrolled in courses in business data processing, business machines, beginning typing, beginning accounting, ocy-acy welding, beginning air conditioning and refrigeration, auto engine diagnosis and trouble shooting, beginning carpentry, beginning drafting, farm mechanics and electronics.

A course in diesel injector pump repair and calibration is conducted on Wednesday and Thursday nights for enrollees that cover a radius of over 100 miles, including persons from Cape Girardeau, Jackson, Sikeston, Kennett, Leachville, Ark., and Piggott, Ark.

A college level vocational course for vocational teachers is held on Tuesday nights. The instructor is a member of the Southeast Missouri State University faculty. Enrollees include teachers from Kennett, Sikeston, Malden and Wappapello, as well as New Madrid County R-1 instructors.

Another adult course offered by the district is a 27-hour workshop conducted from 3 to 6 p.m. for nine weeks for the 43 cooks employed by the district.

The State Department of Education again will hold a regional educational workshop at the vocational complex on Nov. 13. The one- day workshop will involve approximately 300 persons representing 50 school districts across the Southeast Missouri area.

The following testing program and schedule has been adopted for the 1974-75 school year, following a meeting of counselors and administrators:

The Metropolitan Readiness Test, which evaluates the significant aspects of readiness for formal first grade instruction, will be administered to all kindergarten classes in April.

The new 1973 Stanford Achievement Test, which will measure pupil achievement in all major areas of the current curriculum, will be given to grades one through eight during the week of March 24-27.

The California Test of Mental Maturity, which provides for the assessment of general mental ability, or scholastic aptitude, will be administered to students in grades three, five, seven and nine. Grades five, seven and nine will be tested in November. The grade three test will be administered in February.

The General Aptitude Test Battery, which is designed to assist students with their educational and vocational planning, will be administered in January to students in grade 10.

The Missouri School and College Ability Test, which measures intellectual capacity, will be given to grade 11 students in March.

New Madrid County R-1 students will not be in session on Nov. 8. This day has been set aside for a workshop and training day for all certified and non- certified employes of the district.

A series of grade level and subject area planning sessions will be held throughout the day for all teachers and administrators in the various units of the district. The other employes of the district will be involved in various activities on that day.

Plans are being made for an all- district art fair in April, giving students in the district an opportunity for recognition in this area.

The week of Oct. 27 through Nov. 2 is designated as American Education Week. Parents are being encouraged by the board of education, administrators and teachers to visit in the schools.

2 tires, rims stolen

EAST PRAIRIE— Police are investigating a break- in at Leslie Armstrong's Sinclair Station on East Main Street and the theft of two automobile tires and rims from Billy Smithton's used car lot on South Washington Drive.

Both incidents occurred Wednesday night and were reported this morning.

An undetermined amount of money was taken from the pinball, cigarette and soft-drink vending machines and change was taken from a cash register at the station. Entry was gained by breaking out a window.

The tires and rims were removed from an automobile parked at the used car lot.

What's the law?

The case of the unemployed politician

By: JACK STRAUSS, LL.B.

Fred decided to try the most promising of all careers--politics. He quit his job and ran for political office.

After winning the election, however, he found himself with a problem. He wasn't to take office for three months and he had no income during that time.

Consequently, he applied to get his old job back. His ex-employer, however, wasn't one of his loyal constituents and turned him down colder than a Siberian nudist. Undismayed, Fred applied for unemployment benefits.

"A person can't collect unemployment benefits unless he's available to work," he was told. "And since you're going to take over your political job in three months, you're not available."

"Hogwash!" was Fred's answer. "I'm as available as my maiden aunt. What happens in three months is irrelevant. I'm available for work right now and that's what counts. Consequently, I'm entitled to collect."

IF YOU WERE JUDGE, would you grant unemployed Fred unemployment benefits?

This is how the judge ruled: NO! The judge held that Fred was not available for work since he would have to leave his job to take over his political office. What's more, noted the judge, he was further disqualified from receiving benefits for the additional reason that he left his employment without good cause; that running for political office is not "good cause" for leaving a job.

Railroad retirement bill enacted

WASHINGTON (AP) — A bill authorizing the government to put $7.1 billion into the financially troubled railroad retirement system has been enacted into law by Congress over President Ford's veto.

The Senate voted 72-1 Wednesday to approve the bill, marking the first time Congress rejected a veto from Ford. The House voted 360-12 Tuesday to override. Both votes were far more than the necessary two-thirds.

The new law will restructure the railroad retirement system and pump $285 million in federal money into it annually for the next 25 years.

Ford criticized the bill as too expensive and said Congress should come up with a plan that puts less of a burden on taxpayers.

However, Congress decided that a vote to sustain the veto would be politically dangerous since the alternative to a federal subsidy would be a substantial reduction in pensions now being received.

There are about 1 million retired rail workers and survivors now receiving pension checks. The 600,000 workers currently on railroad payrolls also are covered by the system.

House votes to cut off aid

WASHINGTON (AP) — The 194-144 roll call by which the House voted Wednesday on cutting off military aid to Turkey earlier than Dec. 10 if Turkey sends U.S. equipment to its forces on Cyprus included:

(A yes vote was a vote to cut off aid. An x means not voting).

Kansas—Roy, D, x; Sebelius, R, no; Shriver, R, no; Skubitz, R, no; Winn, R, x.

Missouri—Bolling, D, x; Burlison, D, no; Clay, D, yes; Hungate, D, yes; Ichord, D, no; Litton, D, x; Randall, D, yes; Sullivan, D, yes; Symington, D, yes; Taylor, R, x.

Summer grade fuel needed

JEFFERSON CITY — Boat owners should purchase gasoline refined specifically for summer consumption, J. W. Abbot, director of the Weights and Measures Division of the Missouri Department of Agriculture recently said in a letter to Missouri marina and resort owners.

"Purchase your summer requirements of gasoline during the summer months," he said, "do not allow your supplier to fill your storage during the winter months from product which has been refined for winter consumption."

Vapor pressure allowed for fuel intended for use in internal combustion engines varies. Winter fuel is refined with a higher pressure.

According to Missouri statutes, the vapor pressure at 100 degrees Fahrenheit cannot exceed 13.5 pounds per square inch in the winter months, and during June, July, August and September, the limit is 9.5 pounds per square inch.

Abbot's warning came after several boats had exploded during the past summer, damaging both property and lives. "Vapor, not gasoline, was the culprit," he said.

Abbot pledged the assistance of his office and the Missouri Department of Agriculture to anyone with questions about fuel purchased for summer consumption.

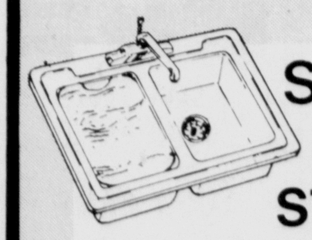

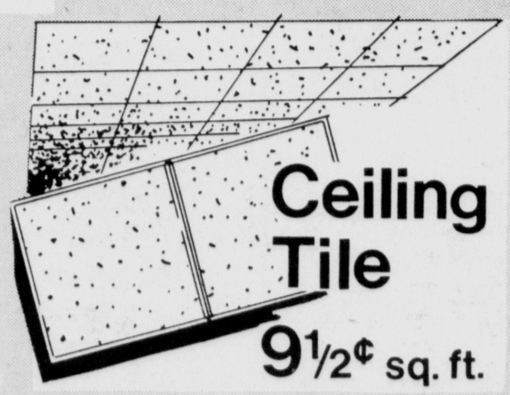

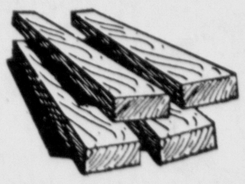

Further information may be obtained by writing to Missouri Department of Agriculture, Weights and Measures Division, Box 630, Jefferson City, Mo. 65101, or by phoning 751-4278.

Ford says no deal behind pardon

WASHINGTON (AP) — President Ford, in a historic personal appearance before a congressional panel, said today he discussed the possibility of pardoning Richard M. Nixon if he resigned as president, but declared there was no deal behind the subsequent pardon.

Reading a lengthy statement in matter-of-fact tones, Ford told the nationally broadcast House Judiciary subcommittee hearing that "I assure you that there never was at any time any agreement whatsoever concerning a pardon to Mr. Nixon if he were to resign and I were to become President."

It was the first documented appearance of a sitting President before a congressional panel, and Ford said he agreed to voluntarily testify to fully and fairly present the facts behind his pardon of Nixon.

From the witness chair in the same room where the full Judiciary Committee conducted its hearings three months ago on Nixon's impeachment, Ford made these major disclosures:

—On Aug. 1 and 2, at meetings with Nixon's staff chief, Alexander M. Haig, and Nixon's chief attorney, James D. St. Clair, there was discussion of a pardon for Nixon if he resigned — as Nixon did on Aug. 9. But Ford said he made clear that "nothing we had talked about ... should be given any consideration" by Nixon in deciding whether to resign.

—The only condition he placed on the pardon he granted Sept. 8 was that Nixon would accept it.

—He had no reports from physicians or psychiatrists on Nixon's health, but did talk to others who had seen Nixon after he resigned. But these reports "were not a controlling factor in my decision."

—He has decided that pardon requests of other Watergate figures will be routed through the Justice Department and he will consider them only after they are so processed.

His statement concluded, Ford answered questions put by subcommittee members in turn, and firmly rejected any suggestion that there would have been reason for Haig to advise Nixon prior to his resignation that he might be pardoned if he quit the White House.

The question was raised by Rep. Don Edwards, D-Calif., and Ford replied: "None whatsoever. Categorically no."

Ford said he discussed the pardon with Haig on Aug. 1 only because the Nixon adviser had told him of various options being considered in the White House, and asked him for any recommendations he might make. "I had none," Ford said.

Edwards also noted that mercy was one of the considerations in the Nixon pardon, and asked whether the same consideration might now apply to the five men now on trial in Washington for the Watergate coverup.

"In light of the fact that these trials are being carried out at the present time, I think it's inadviseable for me to comment on any of the proceedings at those trials," Ford replied.

Much of the questioning provided only a review of what Ford had said earlier, in his White House statements and in his prepared testimony.

In his prepared statement, Ford detailed repeated contacts he had as vice president with Haig and St. Clair on Aug. 1 and 2.

Happy Rockefeller undergoes surgery for breast cancer

NEW YORK (AP) — Vice President-designate Nelson A. Rockefeller announced today that his wife, Happy, was undergoing surgery for breast cancer.

He described the surgery as a radical mastectomy in the left breast. He said the surgery started at 8:30 a.m. in Sloan Kettering Memorial Hospital.

"I'm confident that it's going to come out. All I can say is 'thank God' that she got in and that this country has such wonderful doctors," Rockefeller told a news conference in his Manhattan office.

The surgery came about a week after Betty Ford, wife of the President, left the hospital after undergoing a mastectomy herself.

Asked how it would affect his pending nomination for the vice presidency, Rockefeller responded: "I think at this time perhaps all of us should be thinking about Happy."

Rockefeller opened the news conference by telling reporters, "You won't believe what I'm going to tell you."

He said that Happy had discovered a lump in her breast last Friday. He said there were three small nodules.

He said that his wife was probably a little more conscious of the danger of breast cancer since the recent operation on President Ford's wife.

"As just one more family, we're just very grateful that it led to a checkup," he said.

Hospital can provide new emergency aid

HAYTI — A demonstration was held at Pemiscot County Memorial Hospital for Military Assistance to Safety and Traffic (MAST), program utilizing military helicopters and medical corpsmen to assist local emergency medical service systems by providing assistance to civilian victims of traffic accidents and other medical emergencies.

"We have arranged for such a program," Joseph Brown, administrator of the hospital, said Tuesday. "We feel that it will speed up medical assistance in an emergency and cut down on traffic fatalities. We will call T. Campbell in case of a severe emergency, such as a tornado, industrial explosion, etc."

Brown said he was "very impressed" with a demonstration on how the program works at the hospital shortly after noon Tuesday. He added that the regional planning commission was also impressed.

The MAST demonstration and a meeting — including a film about the program — was given by personnel of the Air Ambulance Platoon 326th Medical Battalion, Fort Campbell, Ky.

Local hospital personnel, chairman of the hospital board Julian Boyd, other board members, doctors from Memphis and other interested people attended the demonstration.

It was mentioned at the meeting that better patient care in medical emergencies is accomplished by transporting patients from the scene of the emergency to the appropriate medical facility, inter-hospital transfer of critical patients, and transportation of medical specialists and equipment to the emergency scene by helicopter.

Existing personnel and equipment from active duty Army aeromedical and Air Force aerospace rescue and recovery units are involved. These military personnel work in cooperation with local health care providers and law enforcement officials according to a locally developed plan between the civilian and military communities.

The basic Army air ambulance is a UH-1H model helicopter, dubbed the "Huey". It is capable of carrying the crew of four plus three litter and four ambulatory patients at any one time. It is capable of flying at 137 miles per hour for two hours without refueling. Special equipment such as portable incubators can be transported easily.

The crew consists of a pilot and a co-pilot, both of which have backgrounds in emergency medical treatment; a highly skilled medical corpsman; and a crew chief, who is cross-trained to assist the medic when necessary. The medical equipment carried on board the aircraft is limited. However, it is adequate for emergency medical treatment and can be supplemented, if necessary.

The proposed Fort Campbell MAST Area will take in the area within a 100 nautical mile radius from Fort Campbell. Approximately one million people live and work within the confines of the proposed operating area. Service will be extended to over 128 medical facilities in 94 communities which dot the area.

World News in Brief

WASHINGTON (AP) — President Ford today vetoed an attempt by Congress at a legislative compromise on cutting off weapons aid to Turkey and the House failed to override the veto.

WASHINGTON (AP) — After 97 years, Congress finally has accepted a massive gift of 19th century memorabilia but it has to wait until July 4, 1976 to be sure exactly what it contains. The gift is an iron safe packed — according to the best available information — with momentoes of the 1876 national centennial celebration. Congress has had physical possession of the safe since 1877 when Mrs. Charles F. Deihm of New York, described in records as a publisher, a dedicated patriot and a Civil War widow, turned it over with the materials she had toured the country to collect. She requested that it be opened on the bicentennial day by the President.

MILAN, Italy (AP) — Duke Ludovico Melzi d'Eril and his wife Bianca, members of one of Italy's most prominent families, today were back at their villa near here after touring Europe for four months with a self-styled "Christ on earth."

The 68-year-old duke and his wife, 62, turned up in Geneva on Tuesday, the first time they had been seen since June 22 when they joined the sect of former Roman Catholic priest Rino Ferraro. An Italian judge has issued an arrest warrant for Ferraro, accused by the duke's family of talking the duke into financing the sect.

Police said the former priest was believed to have gone to West Germany last week, leaving his sect with no money, after telling the members to sit and pray because the world would end on Sunday.

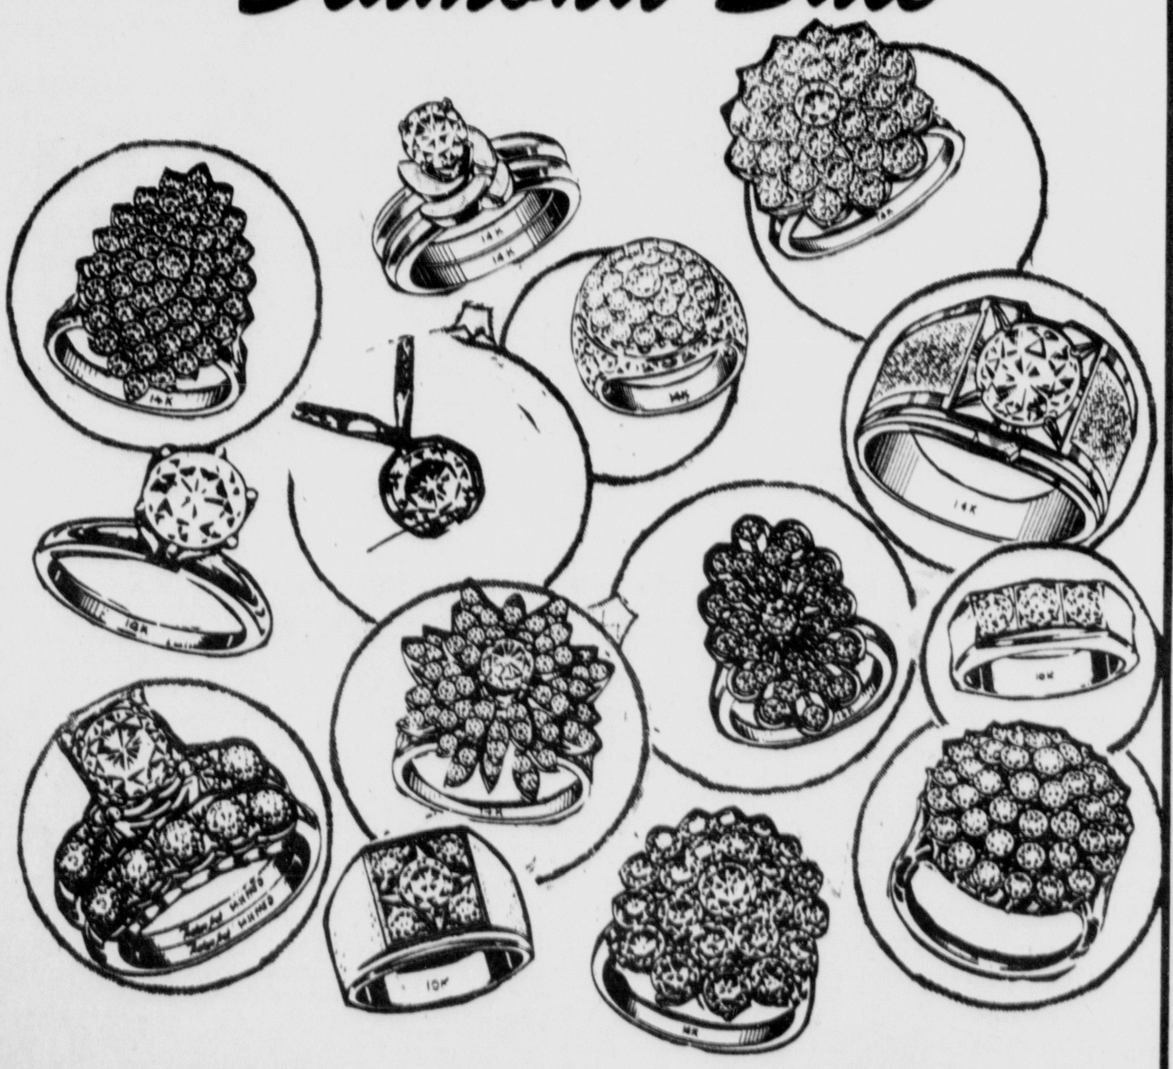

ARMAGH, Northern Ireland (AP) — Women inmates of Armagh jail freed the warden and and three women guards unharmed early today after holding them for 14 hours. The release came after the jail's Roman Catholic and Protestant chaplains had assured the inmates that male prisoners who rioted in other prisons were safe. The prison officers were seized Wednesday as violence swept four Northern Ireland jails and guerrilla bomb explosions and gunfire erupted in Belfast streets.

BONN, West Germany (AP) — West Germany has accused a U.S. business group of trying to meddle in German affairs by opposing a plan giving workers a say in running businesses in Germany, including some American-owned giants. A spokesman for Chancellor Helmut Schmidt told newsmen Wednesday the American Chamber of Commerce in West Gemany was "very close to interfering in our affairs" by distributing a study that criticized the "co-determination" bill presently before parliament.

Smith juggles line-up for Friday's special

Friday night will be a special evening for the mothers of Sikeston high school gridiron athletes and hopefully a special night for the entire team and coach Terry Smith as they battle the Dexter Bearcats at Public School Stadium in search for their first victory of the season.

It has been a long campaign for the Bulldogs and its coaching staff. The team has had more than its share of injuries and problems and faces the dubious destinction of recording the worst record in the school's history.

Coach Smith has made three offensive and five defensive changes for Friday's game in hopes of finding a winning combination. Paul Gilbow has moved into the end spot ahead of Craig Gilbow; Fred Gilliland took over for Mark Hesselrode at guard and Ricky Williams will fill in for the injured Tom DeRoush at tailback. Defensively Don Hankins has stepped into the tackle spot ahead of Jon Ralph; Mark Heeb took over for Rob Newman at nose guard after Newman moved to a linebacker slot to fill in for DeRoush. Mark Hesselrode and Dewey Dumas have also taken over linebacking slots ahead of Ron Friday and Mike Hamra.

The mothers will be honored in 7 p.m. ceremonies and the kickoff will follow around 7:30. After Friday's game the Dogs face three Northern Division powers in Cape Central, Jackson and Poplar Bluff.

Indians 'must' win Saturday

CAPE GIRARDEAU — Perhaps it's too early for those "must" games which come along every season, but that's exactly the way Southeast Missouri State University Coach Jim Lohr views Saturday's 1:30 p.m. Homecoming contest at Houck Stadium here between his Indians and Southwest Missouri State University of Springfield.

The game pits the defending MIAA champion Indians against the pre- season pick to win the 1974 MIAA crown.

The Bears, apparently on the way to their best season since 1966, sport a 4-1 record coming into town. The Indians, on the other hand, are 2-3 and in the hole in the conference, having been edged last week, 21-19, by the University of Missouri -- Rolla.

"Another conference loss and we're out of it," said Lohr.

Until last Saturday UMR had not beaten the Indians in a decade. It's been almost that long since the Bears turned the trick. Their last victory over the Tribe was by a 20-7 margin in 1966.

So far this year the two teams have played one common opponent -- Missouri Southern. The Indians defeated the Joplin club 34-24, while the Bears downed the Lions 41-26.

"We face a real challenge Saturday, and we'll have to play a near perfect football game to have a chance," said Lohr.

The Indian coach hopes the fact that it will be Homecoming on the campus will give the Tribe the extra incentive necessary to spring an upset.

Homecoming definitely has an affect on the mental outlook of a football team, Lohr believes. "The players know there are more of their family, friends, and ex-players in the stands than at other times of the year and they want to make a good showing," he declared.

One of the big reasons for the Bears' success this season is a wide open offensive attack. "They used to run right at you," Lohr said, "but now they make you defend the whole football field."

Junior Kent Stringer of Springfield, who twice this season has been named the MIAA's Offensive Player of the Week, calls the signals for the Bears. He has put the ball in the air 71 times and completed 34 of the attempts for 506 yards.

Stringer's favorite targets are tight end Bob Grana, a St. Louis senior, and slotback Bob Blakley, a St. Joseph sophomore.

Southwest Missouri State's leading rushers are running backs Greg Lawson, a sophomore from Eminence, Ky., and Gino Travline, a sophomore from Gary, Ind. Each is averaging more than five yards per carry. However, the best rushing average on the squad is owned by Blakley, who has gained 179 yards in 21 carries for 8.5 yards per attempt.

The Bears are also strong in the kick-off and punt return departments, according to the latest MIAA statistics.

"We feel we've got to throw the football," said Lohr. The Indians have two quarterbacks who have demonstrated they have the talent, but they have been inconsistent. For that matter, so have the Tribe's running backs and recivers.

Rick Wieser, Topeka, Kan., junior, is the team's top quarterback with 24 completions in 70 attempts for 345 yards and two touchdowns. Senior flanker David Goncher of South Chicago Heights, Ill., is the leading receiver with nine catches for 230 yards and two touchdowns. The top rusher is junior Bobby Everage of Alton, Ill. with 222 yards and two touchdowns on 35 carries.

Mizzou holds the edge

COLUMBIA, Mo. — Oklahoma State's open date last week should have enabled the Cowpokes to polish and improvise their Wishbone attack with new wrinkles for Mizzou's invasion of Lewis Field Saturday.

The Tigers, though, juiced up their offense en route to a 21-10 shocker over fivth- ranked Nebraska at Lincoln -- and OSU's defensive strategists will have to reckon on a new Mizzou backfield format.

Like, for instance, a whip-armed sophomore who'll be starting his first collegiate game. And -- a 225- pound express train at tailback who could be somewhat spectacular in his new habitat.

Steve Pisarkiewicz moves into the No. 1 role at quarterback for Missouri -- while ex-fullback Tony Galbreath supplants freshman Joe Stewart as a bread - and - butter - type tailback in the Power "I".

Scrappy Mark Miller stays at slotback -- his springboard for five touchdowns and 15 pass receptions thus far -- while Ray Bybee leads the Tiger rushers at fullback with a 301-yard haul and 5.4- yard average.

Bybee from East Moline, Ill., now is the only backfield starter who was listed in the pre-season depth charts. The early line had Ray Smith, quarterback; Bill Ziegler, tailback; and Randy Grossart, slotback.

This trio now are on the No. 2 outfit-- Ziegler at slotback, and Grossart at split end.

Pisarkiewicz and Galbreath were the twin propellants in Mizzou's 21- point fourth- quarter eruption against the Cornhuskers. Each scored once. Zark, the Ferguson, Mo. redshirt, hit 5- of- 9 tosses for 42 yards, including a scoring pass. Galbreath of Fulton, Mo., led all ball - carriers with 71 yards in 17 whacks.

Oklahoma State (2-2) gets a revitalizer this week with the return to combat of speedy Leonard Thompson. Out since the Arkansas game with a slight bone fracture in his arm, Thompson is a 9-7 sprinter who gives Coach Jim Stanley's Wishbone good striking power wide.

Thompson's backfield accomplices will be Charlie Weatherbie, quarterback; freshman Skip Taylor, right half; and George Palmer, fullback.

A year ago, Oklahoma State out-rushed the Tigers 229 to 169 out of the same Wishbone here -- and Missouri will be trying to offset that edge this time. The Cowboys have improved their stable of slick- running backs -- but two of them, fullback Robert Turner and freshman Terry Miller - the heralded phenom -- currently are lost with leg fractures.

Mizzou's defense, usually adept at stopping the Wishbone, will be depending on such defensive dandies as Scott Pickens and lynn Evans at the linebacker positions, tackle Mark Johnson and backs Tony Gillick and Ken Downing to show the way.

Evans, with 12 total tackles and four big plays defensively, was Sports Illustrated's Lineman of the Week.

Dodgers 'on the ropes'

OAKLAND (AP) — The embattled Oakland A's have the Los Angeles Dodgers staggering on the ropes and plan to finish off the National League champs tonight with Vida Blue's left-handed punch.

"I'd be disappointed if we don't end it tonight," said third baseman Sal Bando after the A's took a commanding 3-1 lead in the 1974 World Series with a 5-2 victory Wednesday night. "We think very positively."

With Don Sutton on the mound, the Dodgers aren't dead yet — but it may be just a matter of time. Even if they don't win tonight, history is on the A's side. Rarely has a team come back from a 3-1 deficit to win a World Series.

It's only happened three times — 1925, 1958 and 1968.

"We'd like to win tonight, but if we don't, we'll go on down to Los Angeles and finish it," said Bando.

The A's hold the upper hand in this wacky series despite internal unrest, a condition that has been common with this oddball team for some time now.

The latest episode involves Gene Tenace, a sensitive player who was lifted from the lineup by Oakland owner Charles O. Finley prior to Wednesday night's game. Tenace's reaction ranged from humiliation to rage. He branded the A's eccentric owner inhumane.

Tenace, who had played first base for the first three games of this World Series, found out about the lineup change after a team meeting during which Finley gave a pep talk.

"I had to be told by coach Bobby Winkles," said Tenace, still simmering in the clubhouse a few minutes after Wednesday night's significant victory. "Neither Finley nor (Manager Alvin) Dark would tell me. I felt humiliated."

While Tenace burned, Finley kept the rest of the A's smoldering with his pregame meeting. He read some inflammatory remarks from Los Angeles star Bill Buckner that appeared in a local newspaper.

"Buckner said that we have three good ballplayers and that the other 22 are no good," Finley said. "I told them to go out and prove that he's wrong."

The A's did just that — and got excellent performances from some of those people that Buckner had termed inferior to the Dodger talent.

Jim Holt, a pinch-hitter who had been in a terrible batting slump, rifled a two-run single in a four-run sixth inning that broke the game open. Dick Green knocked in a run and made some fabulous defensive plays at second base. And Ken Holtzman and Rollie Fingers, two pitchers that Buckner probably wouldn't mind having on his team, silenced the usually noisy Los Angeles bats.

Holtzman not only dominated the Dodgers most of the time he was in there, but also hit a home run, something the A's have had a tough time doing lately.

Talking about his drive off Andy Messersmith that gave the A's a 1-0 lead in the third inning, Holtzman said: "He got behind me and I was looking for a fastball — and I got it."

The euphoria felt by his home run was quickly dampened by the Dodgers in the next inning. They took a 2-1 lead over Oakland's 19-game winner on a two-run triple by Bill Russell. It quieted the crowd for a while, but they had plenty to shout about in the Oakland sixth.

Bill North led off with a walk and moved to second when Messersmith threw wild past first attempting to pick him off. The A's took advantage of the Dodger mistake, of course. They've been doing it all Series long.

Bando drove in the tying run with a lazy, looping single to right field. Proud of his first hit in this Series, the stocky third baseman announced jokingly: "I hit the hell out of it."

Then Messersmith walked Reggie Jackson and got into more trouble when Joe Rudi sacrificed the runners along. Messersmith then issued an intentional walk to Claudell Washington, who was starting in place of Tenace, and the bases were loaded for the A's.

Holt was announced as the pinch-hitter for Ray Fosse despite a streak of recent frustration. Before the World Series, Holt had gone hitless in 25 appearances as a pinch-hitter. He came through in Saturday's first game, however, and then came through again Wednesday night with a clean base hit to right that gave the A's a 4-2 lead.

Green then grounded into a forceout and Washington came home with the A's fourth run of the inning. It was all over at that point, but the Dodgers didn't know it. They struggled and squirmed while Holtzman held them at bay and then started to make some noises in the eighth inning.

Jimmy Wynn, leader of the Dodgers' long-ball offense this season, walked with two out and Steve Garvey, another of their gold-plated hitters, singled to left with two away. Dark wasted little time in calling in Fingers, whose handlebar moustache is as reknowned as his fine relief pitching.

Fingers struck out the dangerous Joe Ferguson for the last out of the inning, then got through the ninth with the help of a dazzling double play started by the omnipresent Green.

"We can't afford to think negative because we're down three games to one," noted Garvey, refusing to play dead. "You can bet we'll be back tomorrow."

OAKLAND — The Montreal Expos extended the contract of their manager, Gene Mauch, through the 1976 season.

TENNIS

SYDNEY, Australia — American Cliff Richey and top-seeded John Newcombe of Australia scored victories in the $70,000 Australian Indoor Tennis Championships.

BARCELONA, Spain — Tom Okker and Bjorn Borg, the two top seeds, swept through the fourth round of the Spanish Open tennis tournament, while fifth-seeded Arthur Ashe was toppled.

LOS ANGELES — Chris Evert outdueled Rosemary Casals 6-2, 6-7, 6-2 in a marathon quarter-final match in a $100,000 women's tennis tournament after Viginia Wade won her first-round match from Julie Heldman 6-4, 7-5, despite playing with a painfully injured back.

GOLF

PINEHURST, N.C. — David "Spec" Goldman of Dallas and Harry Welch of Salisbury, N.C., a couple of tournament veterans, led the way into the quarterfinals of the North and South Men's Senior golf championship.

TEHRAN, Iran (AP) — Still proud of the successful holding of the seventh Asian Games in Tehran last September, the head of the Iranian Physical Education Department, General Ali Hojat, announced Wednesday that Iran is bidding to host the 1984 Summer Olympic Games.

Jojat said Iran will host the 1983 Students Olympic in order to get prepared for the big international event.

FARM-TO-MARKET

WASHINGTON (AP) — One mile of country road in every five and one bridge in every six are rated "critically deficient" by the Federal Highway Administration, says Donald S. Knight, executive director of the Road Information Program.

Farmers must truck their goods to market over 600,000 miles of rough, rutted roads and across 80,000 aging, narrow bridges, Knight says.

Fruits and vegetables, as they ripen, tend to increase in water content. An apple seed, only 10 per cent water, will produce a ripe apple that is 80 per cent water. A ripe pineapple is 87 per cent water, a tomato is 95 per cent, and a watermelon is 97 per cent water.

On the other hand, a herring is 67 per cent water, a chicken 75 per cent, a frog 78 per cent, a lobster 79 per cent, an earthworm 80 per cent, and man has 70 per cent of his body weight in water.

Water is as vital as the air we breathe, yet we are careless with it. We pollute and waste it. By the time it reaches our homes, it contains every chemical and compound known to man. It is no longer the clean, fresh water that forms in the clouds.

Enjoy the best -- try refined water. It's like drinking from a fresh mountain stream. For a home demonstration call Braswell.

Wheat diseases were extremely costly last season. Yields were cut short generally. And some fields were severely damaged dut to heavy disease infestations. If weather conditions are favorable for diseases next season they can be expected to be a problem unless steps are taken to control them.

Examiners end training

JEFFERSON CITY — Financial examiners for the Missouri Division of Insurance have completed a six- week computer audit training program, division director Edward G. Garmer Jr. has announced.

The System 2170 computer audit training program consisted of three phases and was designed to update the mechanics of auditing insurance companies doing business in Missouri.

The course included one week of classroom instruction, five weeks of on-the- job training and a review and summarization day with a discussion of the System 2170 concepts and applications.

"Completion of this training program marks the first time we have been in such a position to conduct a truly independent audit of computer- produced records of insurance companies," Farmer said.

"In our computer age it is essential that examiners update their methods and narrow the gap between the data processing expertise of insurance companies, and that of regulatory examiners," he said.

As a result of the training received in the course, the time and cost of examinations should be reduced and examination procedures become more sophisticated.

"Missouri is one of the first states to recognize the need for computer examination specialists and to implement a training program," Farmer said.

"It is understood that other states are looking into similar training programs that will eventually enable insurance departments of each state to be on more equal footing with the multi-billion dollar insurance industry they regulate," he added.

Sons of veterans 'special'

ANNAPOLIS, Md. — Sons of career military officers and enlisted men, deceased or disabled veterans or servicemen missing in action have an "unequaled" opportunity to enter next year's class of 1979 at the Naval Academy.

According to Capt. Ronald A. Campbell, the academy's candidate guidance officer, "opportunity might be knocking at the door for some young men on the basis of their father's military service."

For example, he said the President may grant, on a competitive basis, 100 appointments annually to sons of career officers and enlisted personnel of the armed forces and Coast Guard. The parent must either be on active duty now, retired with pay from the service or have died while retired.

Also, Capt. Campbell said that there may be an additional 65 midshipmen at the Naval Academy at any one time who are sons of armed forces members who have died while on active duty or from service connected injuries, who are 100 per cent disabled or who have been designated as missing in action.

Capt. Campbell urges young men who quality for Presidential appointments to consider the opportunities available at Annapolis.

"First, they have a special path to four years of college, including professional training and education, valued at $55,000," he said.

The program leads to a bachelor's degree which is highly respected in America's engineering and scientific fields. It also leads to a commission as an officer in the Navy or Marine Corps and fine opportunities for graduate level study leading to an advanced degree.

"Second, in addition to providing the finest professional naval education available in the world, the Academy produces responsible leaders who are self- confident and necessarily so," he stated.

"And finally, the Navy means travel all over the world, working with foreign navies and being a personal overseas ambassador for the United States. Being a naval officer is a demanding life, but it is a full and rewarding life for those who will accept the challenge," he added.

Interested young men should write to the Superintendent, U. S. Naval Academy (Attn: Candidate Guidance), Annapolis, Md., 21402 for a catalog, which includes a sample letter of application for a Presidential nomination and additional information on the Naval Academy.

Citizens feel helpless against plant

REFORM, Mo. (AP) — "What's the point of worrying. There isn't anything we can do about it."

Mrs. Kenneth Powers stood in the doorway of her singlelevel home, holding her baby and summarizing the feelings of her neighbors in the small hamlet of Reform, tucked away in the rolling hills of central Missouri just north of the Missouri River.

The Union Electric Co., of St. Louis has filed for an application to build a major nuclear power plant here, the first in the state, and the Missouri Public Service Commission will begin public hearings this afternoon on whether to give the utility authority to construct the $1.6 billion project.

"We're not too thrilled about it, though," Mrs. Powers added. "The people we've known all our lives are moving away. My husband was born here. They're not just friends, they're like family."

The Powers' 37-acre tract is about a mile west of the site for the two 1.15 million kilowatt power units that are expected to be in service by 1983. The location is only a 30-minute drive from the state Capitol.

She said they have not been told they'll have to move, but the company has already acquired most of the 6,600 acres of land from about 35 families for construction of the plant if it's approved.

And there appears to be little doubt of that in the minds of the residents of Reform.

"There's not a doubt in my mind that it'll be approved," said Jewel Holland, operator of the general store, as she pointed through the store's front windows at the field to the southwest where the major generating units will stand.

"They wouldn't be spending all the money if they weren't sure they'd get the okay," she said. One of the two giant cooling towers for the operation will stand where store has stood since 1902 when the plant is completed.

But Mrs. Holland said nobody in town opposes construction of the plant and she emphasized that the people from Union Electric "have been real nice" as well as fair to the residents of Reform.

Her general store and its two gasoline pumps out front, located on a sharp bend in County Route DD, is the only commercial building still left in Reform, a town more than a century old that got its name from a group of religious reformers passing through in the 1800s, so the story goes.

The post office, a saloon, a blacksmith's shop and the school have all been gone for years, but the city limit signs along the blacktop road still stand and in the last few years the town has gotten some newcomers, people moving to the country to get away from the city, Mrs. Holland said.

Since the announcement more than a year ago that Reform would be the location of the plant, traffic through the community has increased with both people looking for one of the up to 1,200 construction jobs on the proposed project and company officials, who are "in and out most every week" because of preliminary work.

But now growth in Reform has stopped. Those whose land has been purchased for the plant have to be out by June 1, Mrs. Holland said, and most have already found new places to live, generally in the Callaway County area.

Mrs. Holland said, however, she and her husband have made no decisions on where to go, and neither has W. K. McCall who owns the 160-acre farm just across from the Holland store.

"You have to look at leaving with mixed feelings," McCall said outside his white frame house surrounded by colorfully leaved trees. "I've lived here off and on most of my life."

He expects to relocate in the area, probably in Fulton about 10 miles away, but acknowledge, "We haven't actively been looking, but I guess we're going to have to start pretty soon."

FIRE PREVENTION

GAINESVILLE, Ga. (AP) Firemen in Hall County answered a call to a mobile home — not to extinguish a fire, but to prevent one.

Rose Marie Brown telephoned the Fire Department and said she was at work but couldn't leave.

Firemen went to her mobile home and turned off the stove which she had forgotten.

Henderson explains COE to Kiwanis

Earl Henderson, instructor for the Sikeston High School cooperative occupational education (COE) program, discussed the program at Tuesday night's Kiwanis Club meeting at Ramada Inn.

Henderson explained that the program allows students to work at the trade they would to follow while getting their high school education. He told Kiwanians that the main job field for students is in distribution of goods, which covers many occupations.

The program has 130 students and the most difficult problem facing the school is finding the right jobs for the students, Henderson said. He added that the school trains the students to be on time, show up every day and do what they are told. Participants in the program can acquire 1,000 work hours in two years.

Steve Hughes, a senior in the program, also discussed the program and the Distributive Education Club of America (DECA) chapter at Sikeston High School. The club is a national youth organization composed of working students of the COE program. The clubs have local, district, state and national contests. Tom Schoemehl was a guest at the meeting.

Prayer for today

from the Upper Room

"He who finds his life will lose it, and he who loses his life for my sake will find it." (Matthew 10:39)

PRAYER: Father, make us sensitive to the needs of others around us. Give us the incentive to befriend people and draw them to Your kingdom. Amen.

UNUSUAL FEAT

NEW YORK (AP) — Much has been written about the fragility of records, especially on the racetrack. But a record not likely to be equalled in thoroughbred racing belongs to Rushaway. In 1936 he won the Illinois Derby at Aurora and the next day he took the Latonia Derby at Covington, Ky.

Man injured in 1-car accident

OXLY — An Oxly man received minor injuries in a one- car traffic accident at 6:40 p.m. Wednesday on Highway 142 one-half mile east of this Ripley County town, the highway patrol announced today.

The accident occurred when a westbound pickup truck driven by Fred Vinson, 64, ran off the road and struck a mailbox and bridge embankment.

Vinson was taken to Ripley County Hospital in Doniphan.

Roy Sanderson

Sanderson gets scholarship

Roy Sanderson, 17, son of Mr. and Mrs. Weldon Sanderson, 709 Mimosa Drive, has been awarded a $120 solo flight scholarship by the Missouri Wing of the Civil Air Patrol.

Cadet Sanderson, a senior at Sikeston High School, is a member of the Sikeston Civil Air Patrol unit. Sanderson's award marked the first time a member of the Sikeston unit has received a flight scholarship.

The scholarship will allow Sanderson to take his solo flight training locally and will pay for most of the training.
